In Search of (Non)Sense Elzbieta Chrzanowska-Kluczevska, Grzegorz Szpila, 2009-01-14 it would seem natural to assume that the disciplines of literary studies and linguistics should by rights converge regularly to exchange views as each pursues its own goals Is such a convergence possible on the question of sense and nonsense James W Underhill this volume The contributors to the present volume have focused their attention on two sets of problems that are leitmotifs in all the articles gathered Firstly should literary semantics the linguistic study of texts discourses marked with the feature of literariness and poeticalness strive after an interpretation of all such texts at all costs Are all literary texts interpretable How do we cope with such troublesome linguistic phenomena as anomaly deviance and absurdity Aren t we by any chance fascinated by nonsense Do we try to make it at least partly meaningful Is interpretability our default value The introductory article by the renowned scholar Margaret H Freeman is an important voice indeed a manifesto of sorts of literary semanticists in this respect Secondly while trying to answer all these questions well aware of the fact that literary semantics is a fuzzy branch of linguistic studies we have attempted at exploring its borderline zone to see to what extent we have to draw from various theoretical sources Literary semanticists have often proved that they are capable of arguing contrastively in the atmosphere of openness to such neighbouring fields as discourse analysis literary pragmatics and reader response theories narratology literary semiotics and hermeneutics translation studies and very importantly the philosophy of language The authors contributing to this book an international company of regularly cooperating linguists and literary scholars strike a nice balance between the cognitive and the more traditionally or philosophically oriented frameworks of study being a vivid proof that cognitive and other denominations are perfectly capable of fruitful coexistence The volume ends with a short presentation by Rados aw Nowakowski already known to academic and artistic audiences in Europe as a creator and propagator of liberature the art of unusual bookmaking the art of the book liberated from our traditional preconceptions We hope that our volume will be of interest to academics and students of literary theory and linguistics alike especially those involved in literary semantics stylistics and poetics Naturally the book is also addressed to members and sympathizers of IALS International Association of Literary Semantics and the readers of Journal of Literary Semantics scattered across the world
