General Technical Report INT., 1983 Tropical Forests and Their Crops Nigel J. H. Smith, J. T. Williams, Donald L. Plucknett, Jennifer P. Talbot, 2018-05-31 The tropics are the source of many of our familiar fruits vegetables oils and spice as well as such commodities as rubber and wood Moreover other tropical fruits and vegetables are being introduced into our markets to offer variety to our diet Now as tropical forests are increasingly threatened we face a double fold crisis not only the loss of the plants but also rich pools of potentially useful genes Wild populations of crop plants harbor genes that can improve the productivity and disease resistance of cultivated crops many of which are vital to developing economies and to global commerce Eight chapters of this book are devoted to a variety of tropical crops beverages fruit starch oil resins fuelwood fodder spices timber and nuts the history of their domestication their uses today and the known extent of their gene pools both domesticated and wild Drawing on broad research the authors also consider conservation strategies such as parks and reserves corporate holdings gene banks and tissue culture collections and debt for nature swaps They stress the need for a sensitive balance between conservation and the economic well being of local populations If economic growth is part of the conservation effort local populations and governments will be more strongly motivated to save their natural resources Distinctly practical and soundly informative this book provides insight into the overwhelming abundance of tropical forests an unsettling sense of what we may lose if they are destroyed and a deep appreciation for the delicate relationships between tropical forest plants and people around the world

The global economy of pulses Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-10-18 The production trade and consumption of pulses have seen substantial growth over the last fifteen years This report examines the trends and patterns of this growth and the factors that explain these for different kinds of pulses The report presents an analysis of trends of consumption of pulses in different regions of the world and discusses the role that pulses can play in human nutrition The report presents an analysis of the dynamics of growth of major pulses in different pulse producing countries of the world It describes the increasingly important role of trade in the global economy of pulses and presents an analysis of changing patterns of trade The report argues that there is a pressing need to close the large gap between potential and actual yields particularly on smallholder farms in South Asia and sub Saharan Africa by increased adoption of improved varieties and modern agronomic practices in all developing countries This in turn requires a major thrust in agricultural research and extension improving credit availability and public investment directed at pulse production The report discusses future prospects and policy imperatives for sustaining the growth of pulse production
