Libraries Without Walls 5 The Distributed Delivery Of Library And Information Services:

Libraries Without Walls 6 Peter Brophy, Jenny Craven, Margaret Markland, Manchester Metropolitan University. Centre for Research in Library and Information Management, 2006 This edited collection is drawn from the sixth Libraries Without Walls Conference held in 2005 From their beginnings in 1995 the Libraries Without Walls conferences have mapped a major change in the practice of librarianship While library services are still concerned to provide users with physical access to their buildings electronic access often from remote locations is becoming ever more dominant Papers presented at previous LWW conferences have provided examples of how libraries are pushing out the frontiers of their services In 2005 a different approach was taken The question was asked How do we know whether these new services are having a positive impact on our users In response papers written by leading professionals worldwide followed these broad themes theoretical approaches to the evaluation of the new services with an emphasis on qualitative methods the user experience what do we know about the users of these services assessment of the usability including the accessibility of the services measuring the outcomes and impact Readership These state of the art papers will enable library managers and information professionals in all sectors to keep abreast of the latest developments in this vital area The book will also assist educational specialists and course developers in increasing their understanding of the role and importance of information in the learning process Libraries

Without Walls 5 Peter Brophy, Shelagh Fisher, Jenny Craven, Manchester Metropolitan University. Centre for Research in Library and Information Management, 2004 Distributed learning is now in the mainstream of educational practice Learning is routinely delivered to citizens in their locality at home or at work as well as in more formal settings in educational institutions Supporting such endeavours professional librarians have moved from the theoretical library without walls of little more than a decade ago to widespread implementation across the world Information and communications technologies ICTs are now almost universally exploited by libraries to deliver their services utilizing the world wide web as the medium of choice so that more and more users are accessing services remotely As a result libraries have broken down the barriers of physical location and take for granted that their services will be delivered to their clients wherever they may be Ever more sophisticated applications are being launched to meet escalating demand from users This edited collection is drawn from the fifth Libraries Without Walls Conference held in 2003 which addressed the key strategic issues arising from international regional and cross sectoral approaches to the provision of library services to distant users It is recognized as the premier resource for all needing to keep updated on distance learner and virtual library issues which addressed the key strategic issues arising from international regional and cross sectoral approaches to the provision of library services to distant users It is recognized as the premier resource for all needing to keep updated on distance learner

Access, Delivery, Performance Peter Brophy, 2009 Celebrates and acknowledges the contribution Professor Peter Brophy has made over a career spanning 37 years to the field of library and information studies Reflecting on his work this title offers strategies for the future direction of library and information services in the virtual era

The Library in the Twenty-first Century Peter Brophy, 2007 Social cultural and technological developments are revolutionizing library services The way ahead for the profession is now generally seen as a practical blend of traditional and electronic materials with integrated support services which fit seamlessly into users normal ways of working This is leading to a fundamental rethinking of the role of the library in society Drawing on the author s recent research this timely second edition of The Library in the Twenty first Century offers a clear new model of how traditional and electronic sources can co exist in the library of the future building on the previous work by focusing on the library as a vehicle for encouraging creativity as well as a provider of information resources It is now commonplace that libraries have a major role to play as expert intermediaries helping users to gain access to the tools needed for effective acquisition and use of information within the broader context of the networked information world But it is beginning to be recognized that they still have a profounder role within their communities and this book emphasizes that beyond the intermediary role is the vital requirement to promote understanding and engagement Written by one of our most experienced librarians and drawing on a range of international research and development experience this authoritative work offers the following topics libraries in the modern world the view from the sectors cross sectoral models the profession s view digital libraries what is a good library linking users to resources beyond the intermediary the library user the information universe Readership This incisive text supported by an extensive glossary and bibliography proposes a practical agenda of issues for the information profession to tackle and is essential reading for both established library practitioners and LIS students as well as for library managers and administrators across all sectors
