Turn-taking in human communicative interaction Judith Holler,Kobin H. Kendrick,Marisa Casillas,2016-05-09 The core use of language is in face to face conversation This is characterized by rapid turn taking This turn taking poses a number central puzzles for the psychology of language Consider for example that in large corpora the gap between turns is on the order of 100 to 300 ms but the latencies involved in language production require minimally between 600 ms for a single word or 1500 ms for as simple sentence This implies that participants in conversation are predicting the ends of the incoming turn and preparing in advance But how is this done What aspects of this prediction are done when What happens when the prediction is wrong What stops participants coming in too early If the system is running on prediction why is there consistently a mode of 100 to 300 ms in response time The timing puzzle raises further puzzles it seems that comprehension must run parallel with the preparation for production but it has been presumed that there are strict cognitive limitations on more than one central process running at a time How is this bottleneck overcome Far from being easy as some psychologists have suggested conversation may be one of the most demanding cognitive tasks in our everyday lives Further questions naturally arise how do children learn to master this demanding task and what is the developmental trajectory in this domain Research shows that aspects of turn taking such as its timing are remarkably stable across languages and cultures but the word order of languages varies enormously How then does prediction of the incoming turn work when the verb often the informational nugget in a clause is at the end Conversely how can production work fast enough in languages that have the verb at the beginning thereby requiring early planning of the whole clause What happens when one changes modality as in sign languages with the loss of channel constraints is turn taking much freer And what about face to face communication amongst hearing individuals do gestures gaze and other body behaviors facilitate turn taking One can also ask the phylogenetic question how did such a system evolve There seem to be parallels analogies in duetting bird species and in a variety of monkey species but there is little evidence of anything like this among the great apes All this constitutes a neglected set of problems at the heart of the psychology of language and of the language sciences This Research Topic contributes to advancing our understanding of these problems by summarizing recent work from psycholinguists developmental psychologists students of dialog and conversation analysis linguists phoneticians and comparative ethologists

Japan English Publications in Print ,1998 Modality□Aspect Interfaces Werner Abraham, Elisabeth

Leiss,2008-06-26 The main topics pursued in this volume are based on empirical insights derived from Germanic logical and typological dispositions about aspect modality links These are probed in a variety of non related languages The logically establishable links are the following Modal verbs are aspect sensitive in the selection of their infinitival complements embedded infinitival perfectivity implies root modal reading whereas embedded infinitival imperfectivity triggers epistemic readings However in marked contexts such as negated ones the aspectual affinities of modal verbs are neutralized or even subject to markedness inversion All of this suggests that languages that do not or only partially bestow upon full modal verb paradigms seek to express modal variations in terms of their aspect oppositions This typological tenet is investigated in a variety of languages from Indo European German Slavic Armenian African Asian Amerindian and Creoles Seeming deviations and idiosyncrasies in the interaction between aspect and modality turn out to be highly rule based The Journal of the

Aspects of (Post)Colonial Linguistics Daniel Schmidt-Brücken,Susanne Schuster,Marina Wienberg,2016-01-15 Research in Colonial and Postcolonial Linguistics has experienced a significant increase in contributions from varying fields of language studies gaining the attention of scholars from all over the world This volume aims to showcase the variety of topics relevant to the study of language s in colonial postcolonial and decolonial contexts A main reason of this variety is that the new paradigm invites and necessitates research on different subject matters such as language typology grammar and cross linguistics meta linguistics and research on language ideology discourse analysis and pragmatics The contributions of this volume are selected peer reviewed papers which were partly invited and partly given at the First Bremen Conference on Colonial and Postcolonial Linguistics held in September 2013 Polarity-Sensitive Expressions Hideki Kishimoto,Osamu Sawada,Ikumi Imani,2023-12-18 Polarity positive negative is one of the most fundamental concepts in the system of language and there are many expressions that are sensitive to polarity For example any in English and wh mo in Japanese appear in negative contexts but not in positive contexts While previous studies have shown that polarity sensitive expressions are a general phenomenon in languages it has also become clear that there are variations in polarity sensitive expressions This volume explores the variations in polarity sensitive expressions through comparisons between Japanese and other languages such as English German Spanish and Old Japanese and examines the environments and contexts in which polarity sensitive expressions occur as well as the types of cross linguistic variation allowed The value of the present volume lies in its inclusion of research papers inquiring into various types of polarity sensitive expressions such as negative positive and discourse sensitive polarity items as well as their variations The research indicates new directions for the study of polarity sensitive expressions in the fields of syntax semantics pragmatics historical linguistics corpus linguistics and psycholinguistics East Asian Pragmatics Xinren Chen,Doreen Dongying Wu,2022-08-26 Most of the innovative and exciting work done by East Asian pragmaticians on their languages past and present alike is written and published in local languages As a result research published in and about a particular East Asian language has been largely unavailable to those who do not speak the language The contributors seek to present a comprehensive survey of existing outputs of pragmatics research on three major East Asian languages Chinese Japanese and Korean The survey concentrates on a number of core pragmatic topics such as speech acts deixis discourse markers conversation analysis discourse analysis and face im politeness To complement and compare with the picture of research work published in the local languages the volume also includes a survey of internationally published English mediated articles and books studying the regional languages or contrasting them with other languages A rivetting discourse on pragmatics research it will be a valuable read for students and scholars alike
