Nation Formation and Social Cohesion MISTRA

MISTRA, 2014-06-04 Nation Formation and Social Cohesion is the publication of a MISTRA research project that set out to examine different interpretations and meanings that diverse social actors attach to the calls and prospects for nation formation and social cohesion. The publication links theories of nation formation and social cohesion to actual practices both focused on the attainment of a just society founded on the irreducible equality of all its members on the one hand and the factors militating against achieving this on the other. Ethnographic research in four provinces provides the substance or practice to the theoretical framing of the discourse. The study proceeds by interrogating the theoretical suppositions of nation formation and social cohesion and this serves as a starting point for a thorough reflection on these two processes. Thus a synthesis and not a conceptual position is arrived at where the interdependence of nation formation and social cohesion specifically for postcolonial societies and South Africa in particular can be interrogated effectively and critically. This publication with contributors Andries Oliphant, Yacoob Abba Omar, Joel Netshitenzhe, Leslie Diken, Shepi Mati, Vincent Williams, Robert Gallagher and Feizel Mamdoo is intended to add to the debate and stimulate new thinking around the difficult processes that are being sought to build a nation in the 21st century. Nation vs. People Dzemaal

Sokolovic, 2009-03-26 The book is provoked by the recent tragedy of Bosnia and the clash within a paradigmatic multicultural society. It offers theoretical responses both to the challenge of Bosnia and to the global challenge of how to reconcile two facts of the modern world and the threat that stems from this: the existence of 200 states and their commitment to their own integrities and the existence of 8000 ethnic groups and their devotion to keep their identities alive. The question the book raises is whether nation state and democracy are the proper and only answers to these challenges. Presenting conceptual controversies about two of the most discussed and disputed concepts of the present day, the author insists on totally new notions of nation and people, ethnic group, narod, folk. He maintains that ethnicity and nationality have hitherto been defined mainly in terms of culture and politics in anthropology and political science. Both concepts are however basically societal phenomena and therefore fall primarily within the subject domain of sociology. By combining a theoretical analysis with experience from Bosnia, the book provides definitions of concepts such as ethnic group and nation and thereby ensures a new perspective and analytical tool for an international audience of academics and officials in international institutions and organizations. While the book is written in an academic style, it is nevertheless accessible to a broader audience: professors willing to test their own views and students keen to meet new approaches; academics eager to face new theoretical challenges and politicians ready to apply new emerging expertise; international practitioners capable of learning from life and local activists able to make up new theoretical responses to global issues. New Genetics, New Social Formations Peter Glasner, Paul Atkinson, Helen Greenslade, 2006-12-15 New genetic technologies cut across a range of public regulatory domains and private lifeworlds often appearing to generate an institutional void in response to the complex challenges they pose. As a result, a number of new social formations are being developed to legitimate public engagement and avoid the perceived democratic deficit that may result. Papers in this volume discuss a variety of these manifestations in a global context including genetic data banks, committees of inquiry, non-governmental organisations, NGOs, national research laboratories. These institutions across both health and agriculture are explored in such diverse locations as Amazonia, China, Finland, Israel, the UK and the USA. This volume exhibits a clear thematic coherence around the impact of the new genetics and their associated technologies on new social formations and the case studies included have a significant international focus, showing a balance between theoretical and empirical approaches in this rapidly changing field. This innovative new volume will be of interest to postgraduates and professionals in the fields of sociology, social anthropology, science and technology studies and environmental studies.

The Formation of Latin American Nations Thomas Ward, 2018-10-25. This pioneering work brings the pre-Columbian and colonial history of Latin America home rather than starting out in Spain and following Columbus and the conquistadores as they discover New World peoples. The Formation of Latin American Nations begins with the Mesoamerican and South American nations as they were before the advent of European colonialism and only then moves on to the sixteenth-century Spanish arrival and its impact. To form a clearer picture of precolonial Latin America, Thomas Ward reads between the lines in the Chronicles of the Indies, filling in the blanks with information derived from archaeology, anthropology, genetics and common sense logic. Although he finds fascinating points of comparison among the Kiche Maya in Central America, the polities of Colombia and the Chim of the northern Peruvian coast, Ward focuses on two of the best-known peoples, the Nahuatl Aztec of Central Mexico and the Inka of the Andes. His study privileges indigenous identified authors such as Diego Muñoz Camargo, Fernando de Alva Ixtlilxochitl, Inca Garcilaso de la Vega and Felipe Guamán Poma de Ayala, while it also consults Spanish chroniclers like Hernán Cortés, Bernal Díaz del Castillo, Pedro Cieza de León and Bartolomé de las Casas. The nation-forming processes that Ward theorizes feature two forms of cultural appropriation: the horizontal in which nations appropriate people and customs from adjacent cultures and the vertical in which nations dig into their own past to fortify their concept of exceptionality. In defining these processes, Ward eschews the most common measure, race, instead opting for the Nahuatl altepetl, the Inka panaka and the Kiche amaq. His work thus approaches the nation both as the indigenous people conceptualized it and with terminology that would have been familiar to them before and after contact with the Spanish. The result is a truly decolonial account of the formation and organization of Latin American nations, one that puts the indigenous perspective at its center.

The Federation of Palestinian and Hebrew Nations

Abraham Weizfeld, 2018-11-07 This work focuses on the political philosophy and the constitutional transformation of the contradiction between two major nations in one land namely Palestine Israel While the notion of the Nation State has permeated the Levant since the 1917 British crusade into Jerusalem the organic demographic actuality of the country's population is incompatible with the dominance of one nation in one land with the subsequent degeneration into the series of war crimes that began in 1947 To move away from this conception of a Zionist State requires another methodology that offers an alternative to the domination of one nation by another that is rationalized by the myths of nation building promoted by the Nationalist school of thought With an approach that is inter national in the root meaning of the term this book fuses the Jewish Bundist concept of National Cultural Autonomy with the process of constituent assemblies as an expression of the parallel civil societies that become an organic social construction codified in a federal constitution By avoiding the notion of the Nation State this exit may then be named the No State Solution

Digital Formations

Robert Latham, Saskia Sassen, 2009-09-19 Computer centered networks and technologies are reshaping social relations and constituting new social domains on a global scale from virtually borderless electronic markets and Internet based large scale conversations to worldwide open source software development communities transnational corporate production systems and the global knowledge arenas associated with NGO networks This book explores how such digital formations emerge from the ever changing intersection of computer centered technologies and the broad range of social contexts that underlie much of what happens in cyberspace While viewing technologies fundamentally in social rather than technical terms Digital Formations nonetheless emphasizes the importance of recognizing the specific technical capacities of digital technologies Importantly it identifies digital formations as a new area of study in the social sciences and in thinking about globalization The ten chapters by leading scholars examine key social political and economic developments associated with these new configurations of organization space and interaction They address the operation of digital formations and their implications for the development of longstanding institutions and for their wider contexts and fields and they consider the political economic and other forces shaping those formations and how the formations in turn are shaping such forces Following a conceptual introduction by the editors are chapters by Hayward Alker Jonathan Bach and David Stark Lars Erik Cederman and Peter A Kraus Dieter Ernst D Linda Garcia Doug Guthrie Robert Latham Warren Sack Saskia Sassen and Steven Weber
