

Formative Spirituality: Vol. 1, Fundamental Formation. By Adrian Van Kaam. New York: Crossroad, 1983. xxi + 330 pages. $24.50.

This is the first of a four volume series on foundational formation or spirituality. It mainly discusses the presuppositions, structures and dynamics involved in the ways that human life is formed and unfolds as spirit. Each chapter systematically delves into and sorts out the distinct forms that our most fundamental thrust for life assumes as it interacts dynamically with the internal and external forces affecting life. By carefully studying and ordering these formative moments, it attempts to provide an acceptable understanding of human formation that has a universal practical application for those seeking to live more consonant and happier lives. This study is also proposed and defended as a new independent science.

Formative spirituality centers not on our life in the Spirit but on the human spirit's drive towards a unique transcendent form. It exposes how the human spirit is influenced by our vital and sexual life, our functional way of acting and our surrounding world, while at the same time spiritualizing and personalizing them so that they harmonize with one's deepest transcendent aspirations. This study is especially interested in the universal directives that it receives, particularly from the mysterious power that awakens the thrust within us to fulfill our unique call. A person needs to surrender to this sense of direction by freely committing oneself to live according to one's unique form as it follows universal laws.

This is a critically important work. It exposes in a very detailed analytical and synthetic way how the human spirit functions within our life processes. The matter is exceedingly complex and abstruse but presented in a generally clear, controlled and balanced way. I have reservations, however, on two scores: the attempt to justify formative spirituality as a new independent science and its technical vocabulary.

I agree that human formation embraces many separate sciences that ought to be integrated in a holistic discipline whose aim would be to improve the quality of life. I am skeptical, however, that other universities will introduce a program similar to Van Kaam's at Duquesne and wonder where and what his graduates will teach. It strikes me that foundational formation more fittingly pertains to an interdisciplinary program within Philosophy (or, because of its ultimate religious aim, to Fundamental Theology) where human experience is critically analyzed and thought through for its practical application.

I also feel an ambiguity regarding Van Kaam's use of technical terms. While sympathetic to his desire to use scientific terms that fully express his meaning, I sense that they are going to cause the average reader considerable bewilderment, if not frustration. When added to the in-depth minute treatment of formation processes, the language can make this an elitist work too specialized for the uninitiated to comprehend, let alone judge critically.

In brief, despite my reservations, I would recommend this work for those well versed in the field of humanistic studies. It presents a stimulating and convincing foundational synthesis of how the human drive for life integrates itself with its internal and external forces.

Indigenous Africa R. Sambuli Mosha, 2002-12-24 Empowered by findings and insights from the wit and wisdom of the indigenous Chaga educational system Dr Mosha contends that an authentic educational program in Tanzania and elsewhere should be holistic in its unrelenting quest to educate the entire person body mind and spirit He provides a comprehensive description of the indigenous schooling process and its underlying fundamental virtues and then proposes that modern education should give equal emphasis to both the spiritual development of students as well as to their intellectual growth in knowledge science and technology Dr Mosha argues that for its own advantage and survival education has to prioritize moral consciousness and responsibility in its students in order to attain academic excellence Without a consistent moral living and moral action by all who teach and learn education eventually plunges into hopeless mediocrity It becomes the proverbial salt which loses its saltiness This book provides several unique contributions to the academy First it illustrates how the Chaga people of N Tanzania cherish everyday experience and every here and now situation as teachable moments teaching moments and learning moments It is also uniquely rich in its description of stories riddles proverbs and rituals as powerful tools of holistic education Thirdly the book breaks ground by comprehensively articulating specific indigenous virtues such as reverence self control silence and thoughtfulness courage diligence in work and communality This book therefor makes a unique contribution in the areas of Indigenous Knowledge Spirituality Education African American Studies African Studies Religious Studies Anthropology et cetera The author's stories personal experiences and thick descriptions are so fundamental that every reader will rediscover in this book similar experiences in his her own life Divine Designs Rosemarie Carfagna, 1996-09 Nine areas that you will pass through on your journey to holiness are here Suffering leadership transformation and dying are included along with ways to hear envision and grow along the way The Power of Appreciation Adrian L. Van Kaam, Susan A. Muto, 1999-03 Sacred Systems Eric J. Kyle, 2013-12-06 From early Jewish Christian texts such as the Didache which present well defined catechetical programs to contemporary authors such as Dallas Willard who offer in depth insights into the transformations of one's heart and soul systematic texts on spiritual formation in the Western Christian tradition abound These texts can offer ministers researchers and laypersons much clarity and guidance for their craft However the spiritual formation systems that we use are also always contextually influenced such contextual factors may make them difficult to adapt to one's local work Rather than turning to only a single text or community then it can be helpful for practitioners and theorists to look to a broader set of systematic presentations of spiritual formation By turning to a group of specific individuals and communities in each era of Western Christian history this book will help those working in this field to better understand how personal spiritual formation has been conceptualized and embodied Such an exploration will help us not only to compile a more complete history of spiritual formation at the level of the individual but also to glean a better understanding of personal transformation so that we might engage this craft in more informed and systematic ways Horizons , 1984 Pathways of Spiritual Living Susan A. Muto, 1988-05 Founded on the premise that each of us is to be a sign of the living God this primer on spiritual formation is written for Christians in today's busy world Focusing on the universal call to holiness Dr Mutt takes us through each step along the path of spiritual living silence solitude prayer reading meditation journal keeping contemplation and mutual service An ideal book for retreatants spiritual directors and counselors
