

THE NEW YORK STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

The New York State Bar Association is a voluntary association of lawyers and judges in New York State. It was organized in 1908 and has since that time been working for the improvement of the legal profession and the administration of justice in this State. Its members are the lawyers and judges who are active in the practice of law in New York State. The Association is organized into sections, each of which is devoted to the study and promotion of some particular branch of the law. The sections are: the Criminal Law Section, the Family Law Section, the Insurance Law Section, the Labor Law Section, the Real Estate Law Section, the Tax Law Section, the Trial Practice Section, and the Young Lawyers Section. Each section has its own officers and members, and it is through the sections that the Association carries on its work. The Association also has a number of committees, each of which is charged with the study and promotion of some particular project. The committees are: the Committee on the Administration of the Courts, the Committee on the Education of the Bar, the Committee on the Improvement of the Legal System, the Committee on the Relations of the Bar to the Public, and the Committee on the Status of the Women in the Profession. The Association also has a number of other committees, each of which is charged with the study and promotion of some particular project.
