

To escape the Nazi sword Jewish Children were thrust onto a threshold of a turbulent and most brutal life on the Aryan side. Disguised as non-Jewish, they grew up in an emotional turmoil and matured in a tumultuous rhythm.

They struggled against the brutality of a sadistic regime. In agonizing despair and overwhelmed by their conscience, they often asked, "In what merit did I escape the great massacre? Was it worth it to remain alive, alone and uprooted from my home and family? Did I have the right to save my own life? And could a life of loneliness, disguise, and suffering be called life?"

Whenever such questions overpowered Mirka, the image of her father appeared before her, and she heard him saying, "You've got to live! It's in your power to save yourself! Do it, not only for yourself, but for the sake of posterity!"

Literature of the Holocaust Alan Rosen, 2013-11-14 During and in the aftermath of the dark period of the Holocaust writers across Europe and America sought to express their feelings and experiences through their writings This book provides a comprehensive account of these writings through essays from expert scholars covering a wide geographic linguistic thematic and generic range of materials Such an overview is particularly appropriate at a time when the corpus of Holocaust literature has grown to immense proportions and when guidance is needed in determining a canon of essential readings a context to interpret them and a paradigm for the evolution of writing on the Holocaust The expert contributors to this volume who negotiate the literature in the original languages provide insight into the influence of national traditions and the importance of language especially but not exclusively Yiddish and Hebrew to the literary response arising from the Holocaust American Book Publishing Record ,2002 Library Literature & Information Science ,2000 An index to library and information science literature The Holocaust in Literature for Youth Edward T. Sullivan, 1999 The Holocaust in Literature for Youth provides classroom teachers and public and school librarians a practical comprehensive resource guide to all of the literature available for children and young adults on the subject Holocaust education should be more than just the study of the names dates and places it must go beyond the superficial highlights of the textbooks An outstanding resource well organized and informative The Nonhuman in American Literary Naturalism Karin M. Danielsson, Kenneth K. Brandt, 2023-09-05 The Nonhuman in American Literary Naturalism responds to a need to expand and refine the connections among nonhuman studies and American literary naturalism and to productively expand the scholarly discourse surrounding this vital movement in American literary history This collection focuses on that which becomes visible when the human subject is skirted or moved off center in other words the representation of nonhuman animals and other vital or inert species things entities cityscapes and seascapes that play an important part in American literary naturalism Informed by animal studies ecocriticism posthumanism new materialism and other recent theoretical perspectives the essays in this collection discuss early naturalist texts as well as more recent naturalistic oriented authors Genetics and the Literary Imagination Clare Hanson, 2020-05-06 Oxford Textual Perspectives is a series of informative and provocative studies focused upon literary texts conceived of in the broadest sense of that term and the technologies cultures and communities that produce inform and receive them It provides fresh interpretations of fundamental works and of the vital and challenging issues emerging in English literary studies By engaging with the materiality of the literary text its production and reception history and frequently testing and exploring the boundaries of the notion of text itself the volumes in the series question familiar frameworks and provide innovative interpretations of both canonical and less well known works This is the first book to explore the dramatic impact of genetics on literary fiction over the past four decades After James Watson and Francis Crick s discovery of the structure of DNA in 1953 and the subsequent cracking of the genetic code a gene centric discourse developed which had a major impact not only on biological science but on wider culture As figures like E O Wilson and Richard Dawkins popularised the neo Darwinian view that behaviour was driven by genetic self interest novelists were both compelled and unnerved by such a vision of the origins and ends of life This book maps the ways in which Doris Lessing A S Byatt Ian McEwan and Kazuo Ishiguro wrestled with the reductionist neo Darwinian account of human nature and with the challenge it posed to humanist beliefs about identity agency and morality It argues that these novelists were alienated to varying degrees by neo Darwinian arguments but that the recent shift to postgenomic science has enabled a greater rapprochement between biological and post humanist concepts of human nature The postgenomic view of organisms as agentic and interactive is echoed in the life writing of Margaret Drabble and Jackie Kay which also explores the ethical implications of this holistic biological perspective As advances in postgenomics especially epigenetics provoke increasing public interest and concern this book offers a timely analysis of debates that have fundamentally altered our understanding of what it means to be human
