

How to Overcome Dental Fear

Dental fear is a prevalent condition in Australia.

In a study conducted, results show that the prevalence of dental fear among adults alone can range from 7.8 % to 18.8% and severe dental phobia from 0.9% to 5.4%.

Their fear of dentistry includes the following factors:

Dental treatment costs - 64.5%

Needles/ injections - 46.0%

Painful or uncomfortable procedures - 42.9%

If you're scared about visiting your dentist, here are simple ways you can do to reduce your worries and anxieties:

Talk to the dentist or dental staff about your fear or concerns in going to your dental appointment. They may be able to assist you regarding payment options or nature of the procedure.

During your dental treatment, breathe slowly and regularly. Holding your breath may only boost feelings of panic.

Listen to your favourite music if the noise of the drill troubles you.

Schedule the best time to visit the dental office to avoid rushing and pressure.

If looking for a new dentist, ask your friends for suggestions. Finding a reliable dentist helps you reduce your anxiety.

Think positively. Focus on the successful results that will benefit your overall oral health, not on the pain and discomforts.

Feel more comfortable and less nervous. At Smiles First Dental, we help you deal with your dental fear before and during the procedure.

How To Overcome Fear Of Dentistry:

Handbook of Clinical Psychology in Medical Settings Ronald H. Rozensky, Jerry J. Sweet, Steven M. Tavian, 2013-06-29 For two decades I have been responding to questions about the nature of health psychology and how it differs from medical psychology behavioral medicine and clinical psychology From the beginning I have taken the position that any application of psychological theory or practice to problems and issues of the health system is health psychology I have repeatedly used an analogy to Newell and Simon's General Problem Solver program of the late 1950s and early 1960s which had two major functional parts in addition to the executive component One was the problem solving core the procedural competence the other was the representation of the problem environment In the analogy the concepts knowledge and techniques of psychology constitute the core competence the health system in all its complexity is the problem environment A health psychologist is one whose basic competence in psychology is augmented by a working knowledge of some aspect of the health system Quite apparently there are functionally distinct aspects of health psychology to the degree that there are meaningful subdivisions in psychological competence and significantly different microenvironments within the health system I hesitate to refer to them as areas of specialization as the man who gave health psychology its formal definition Joseph Matarazzo has said that there are no specialties in psychology cited in the editors preface to this book There Is No Perfect Dentist Neil Gerrard, 2011-01-01 Don't brush off your dental health Get tips on how to find the dentist who checks off all your boxes for regular cleanings or special procedures This book helps you with one of the most important health choices you will ever face Whether you have an existing dentist who does not offer the type of care you require or whether you are looking to make a change you want to choose a dentist you can trust and who has your and your family's best interests at heart With the myriad choices out there it's hard to narrow down your options even with personal recommendations and online reviews There Is No Perfect Dentist gives you the knowledge to make an informed choice It discusses where to look what to expect from your first visit the role of dental specialists and the dental team how to deal with problems and disagreements and even how to overcome dentophobia the fear of dentists Sink your teeth into There Is No Perfect Dentist and be happy with your smile
