Disarming Intervention Seantel Anaïs, 2015-08-15 Non lethal weapons take many forms from rubber bullets to electroshock and long range acoustic devices which their proponents argue are ethical legal and humane

Social scientists historians legal scholars and activists have long challenged the use of non lethal weapons in policing and war Until now little scholarly attention has been paid to the social historical and legal relations that animate the concept of non lethality nor is there a comprehensive account of how the concept has achieved social and political acceptance

Disarming Intervention tells the story of how the concept of non lethality emerged in a series of nineteenth century legal codes that governed the conduct of international hostilities and how it continued to legitimate US led armed conflicts as ethical legal and humane throughout the twentieth century Seantel Ana s unpacks these issues by tracing the social historical and legal legitimization of non lethality in the United States and in armed interventions abroad Disarming Intervention shows in detail how it came to be that an idea forever changed the relationship between contemporary weapons of armed conflict and war s constitutive objective to produce irreversible injury and death

Walker, 2016-04-15 Since the use of poison gas during the First World War and the dropping of atomic bombs on Japan at the end of the Second World War nuclear biological or chemical NBC weapons have registered high on the fears of governments and individuals alike Recognising both the particular horror of these weapons and their potential for inflicting mass death and destruction much effort has been expended in finding ways to eliminate such weapons on a multi lateral level Based on extensive official archives this book looks at how successive British governments approached the subject of control and disarmament between 1956 and 1975 This period reflects the UK s landmark decision in 1956 to abandon its offensive chemical weapons programme a decision that was reversed in 1963 but never fully implemented and ends with the internal travails over the possible use of CR tear gas in Northern Ireland Whilst the issue of nuclear arms control has been much debated the integration of biological and chemical weapons into the wider disarmament picture is much less well understood there being no clear statement by the UK authorities for much of the period under review in this book as to whether the country even possessed such weapons or had an active research and development programme Through a thorough exploration of government records the book addresses fundamental questions relating to the history of NBC weapons programmes including the military economic and political pressures that influenced policy the degree to which the UK was a reluctant or enthusiastic player on the international arms control stage and the effect of international agreements on Britain s weapons programmes In exploring these issues the study provides the first attempt to assess UK NBC arms control policy and practice during the Cold War Between Crime and War Claire Oakes Finkelstein, Jens David Ohlin, Christopher J.

Fuller, Mitt Regan, 2023 The threat posed by the recent rise of transnational non state armed groups does not fit easily within either of the two basic paradigms for state responses to violence The civilian paradigm focuses on the interception of demonstrable immediate threats to the safety of others The military paradigm focuses on threats posed by collective actors who pose a danger to the state s ability to maintain basic social order and at times the state The book suggests that we need not see the options as confined to this binary choice as it evaluates the philosophical and ethical implications of using both military and non military frameworks for pursuing counterterrorism operations United States Interests in and Policies Toward South Asia United States. Congress. House. Foreign Affairs,1973 United States Interests in and Policies Toward South Asia United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs.
