example fearing the uncertainty of border defense against insurgent encroachment in the north neglected this duty thereby sacrificing the state's security goals acting against government orders and challenging democratic consolidation. Instead of defending the border the army has opted to carry out policing functions within Ecuador such as combating the drug trade. Additionally by ignoring its duty to defend sovereignty the army is available to contract out its policing services to paying private companies that relative to the public benefit disproportionately from army security. Jaskoski also looks briefly at this theory's implications for military responsiveness to government orders in democratic Bolivia, Colombia and Venezuela and in newly formed democracies more broadly. The Actors of Postnational Rule-Making Elaine Fahey, 2015-07-16 Despite its centrality to academic discussions of power and influence there is little consensus in legal scholarship over what constitutes an actor in rule making. This book explores the range of actors involved in rule making within European Union law and Public International law and focuses especially on actors that are often overlooked by formative and doctrinal approaches. Drawing together contributions from many scholars in various fields the book examines such issues as the accommodation of new actors in the process of postnational rule making the visibility or covertness of actors within the process and the role of social acceptance and legitimacy in postnational rule making. In its endeavour to render and examine the work and effect of actors often side lined in the study of postnational rule making this book will be of great use and interest to students and scholars of EU law international law and socio legal studies.
