Get a Clue! Ellen Rosenberg, 2015-08-18. This practical companion to Reviving Ophelia and Real Boys shares the concerns of preteens in their own words and advises parents how to approach them confidently and effectively. Many parents may not want to know that their eight to fourteen year olds are already facing serious issues and have questions such as: Why do people make fun of me because I am from another country? When will I know when puberty has struck? How do I deal with the feeling that no matter how good I do it's not good enough for my parents? What happens when a friend beats you up? Without support, understanding and assistance, the anxiety these dilemmas evoke could undermine a child's confidence and self image as he or she matures. In a reassuring style filled with practical pointers, Ellen Rosenberg, veteran educator of thirty years, tells parents how to open a discussion on the day to day questions their preteens have but may be reluctant to share. Handwritten queries from preteens are included in the text and as they attest, your children do want you to know what's really going on. A communication bible that parents will return to again and again, Get a Clue is sure to help parents and their children become closer and form a bond of trust that will last through middle school, high school, college and beyond.

Ethics in Ethnography Margaret D. LeCompte, Jean J. Schensul, 2015-03-01. This is Book 6 of 7 in the Ethnographer's Toolkit Second Edition. Ethics in Ethnography explores the burgeoning field of research ethics and addresses how both formal and informal ethical considerations underpin good ethnographic research. Coming from the position that no particular research design is more or less prone to generate ethical issues, LeCompte and Schensul open this volume with a short history of formal oversight for human research and address the formal ethical responsibilities incumbent upon researchers. Next, they consider how informal or everyday ethics affect researchers' daily interactions in the field. In recognition of the shift toward team based field research, the authors pay special attention to ethics related to collaborative research. The book concludes with an examination of new challenges and issues ranging from new field realities to the ethics of interpreting research results. As with all books in the series, this title features case studies, checklists, key points to remember and additional resources to consult. The result is a uniquely detailed and eminently useful introduction to the ethical conduct of ethnography.

Anxiety in Childhood and Adolescence Frank Carter,Peter Cheesman,2015-09-25 Many counter productive behaviours in children may be anxiety related and in this book originally published in 1988 the authors proposed that a disabling level of tension and stress experienced by many children frequently goes unrecognised This often leads to failure to analyse psychological and educational problems and inappropriate ways of dealing with them This book was aimed at all professional staff working with children particularly educational and clinical psychologists and teachers The book is however written in a jargon free manner and should have wide appeal The authors show how tension reduction therapy can help children overcome many problems which may manifest themselves as disturbed behaviour poor sleep patterns anorexia school phobia or poor relationship making skills As an extreme example it is shown how significant gains can be made by cerebral palsied children using these approaches The book however is not just a manual of relaxation training it advocates a

Keith J. Topping,2025-08-05 Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children and was supported by legislation Particularly when children had special needs parents required structured training and support to ensure they affectively sustained their vital role as educators at home Many large scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world at the time for example Home Start Portage Home Visiting Projects and Paired Reading Projects However not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access Some projects demonstrated spectacular results and high cost effectiveness while others proved more disappointing Originally published in 1986 this book critically analyses over 600 international English language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes In addition a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials After an introductory overview the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters starting with ordinary children Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments This volume will be of major interest to teachers psychologists social workers community health personnel community educationalists researchers many others working with parents and children and to some parents themselves This book is a re issue originally published in 1986 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication
