The Oxford Handbook of the Responsibility to Protect Alex Bellamy, Tim Dunne, 2016-06-23 The Responsibility to Protect R2P is intended to provide an effective framework for responding to crimes of genocide ethnic cleansing war crimes and crimes against humanity It is a response to the many conscious shocking cases where atrocities on the worst scale have occurred even during the post 1945 period when the United Nations was built to save us all from the scourge of genocide The R2P concept accords to sovereign states and international institutions a responsibility to assist peoples who are at risk or experiencing the worst atrocities R2P maintains that collective action should be taken by members of the United Nations to prevent or halt such gross violations of basic human rights This Handbook containing contributions from leading theorists and practitioners including former foreign ministers and special advisors examines the progress that has been made in the last 10 years it also looks forward to likely developments in the next decade

The United Nations, Peace and Security Ramesh Thakur, 2006-06-08 Preventing humanitarian atrocities is becoming as important for the United Nations as dealing with inter state war In this book Ramesh Thakur examines the transformation in UN operations analysing its changing role and structure He asks why when and how force may be used and argues that the growing gulf between legality and legitimacy is evidence of an eroded sense of international community He considers the tension between the US with its capacity to use force and project power and the UN as the centre of the international law enforcement system He asserts the central importance of the rule of law and of a rules based order focused on the UN as the foundation of a civilised system of international relations This book will be of interest to students of the UN and international organisations in politics law and international relations departments as well as policymakers in the UN and other NGOs

Multilateralism Versus Unilateralism Noële Crossley,2008 There are various opinions on the relevance of the United Nations concerning the authorisation of the use of force Idealists demand UN authorisation for any type of intervention and strict adherence to a narrow interpretation of international law Realists have a more sceptical stance arguing that international law and international institutions are only successful under specific circumstances Neoconservatives defy international law and international institutions These arguments are compared and then applied to several case studies It is explained why unilateralist thinking is not viable why the use of force in circumvention of the UN framework is never legal and that cases where intervention is illegal but legitimate necessitate reform of international laws and institutions
