Kriminalisticheskaia Kharakteristika Prestuplenii:

Trafficking Justice Lauren A. McCarthy, 2015-11-16 In response to a growing human trafficking problem and domestic and international pressure human trafficking and the use of slave labor were first criminalized in Russia in 2003 In Trafficking Justice Lauren A McCarthy explains why Russian police prosecutors and judges have largely ignored this new weapon in their legal arsenal despite the fact that the law was intended to make it easier to pursue trafficking cases Using a combination of interview data participant observation and an original dataset of more than 5 500 Russian news media articles on human trafficking cases McCarthy explores how trafficking cases make their way through the criminal justice system covering multiple forms of the crime sexual labor and child trafficking over the period 2003 2013 She argues that to understand how law enforcement agencies have dealt with trafficking it is critical to understand how their institutional machinery the incentives culture and structure of their organizations channels decision making on human trafficking cases toward a familiar set of routines and practices and away from using the new law As a result law enforcement often chooses to charge and prosecute traffickers with related crimes such as kidnapping or recruitment into prostitution rather than under the 2003 trafficking law because these other charges are more familiar and easier to bring to a successful resolution In other words after ten years of practice Russian law enforcement has settled on a policy of prosecuting traffickers not trafficking
