Less Than Human James Gannon MD, 2023-06-15 Ever want to be a doctor or wonder how a physician feels about healthcare Follow one man's journey through medical training and his reflections on the process Less Than Human is a physician's experience and insider perspective into the abusive and corrupt academic political and legal systems one navigates to succeed in medicine There is a dehumanizing aspect of medicine healthcare for both patients and doctors Our academic system treats students and eventual medical residents as a disposable exploitable commodity and patients as throughput objects Unfortunately healthcare focus is now taken off the patient and instead diverted to total government submission under the mantra of Compliance Subservience to government mandates override patient care Besides bone crushing debt imposed by the higher education system medicine is practiced under heavy handed political litigious and media influence this book offers insight and critique of the American political media and legal systems which undermine the Doctor Patient relationship This book was initially self published in 2015 to help improve medical care in this country this second edition is culled to be more focused and concise yet still clearly describe deficiencies and offer solutions Direct common sense changes to this day not practiced are proposed to aright a failed system of academia healthcare and the politics that controls them Many of the issues presented in this book weigh heavily on doctors but also creep into many aspects of our society The greatest coup in healthcare is propaganda convincing people to mistrust their doctors and have blind faith in politicians

More-than-Human Aging Cristina Douglas,Andrew Whitehouse,2024-10-11 What does later life look like when it is lived in the companionship of other species Similarly how do other species age or not with humans and what sort of a symmetries if any are brought to light around how we understand and think about aging So far aging has been investigated in the social sciences in purely human terms This is the first collection of original work that considers aging as taking place in relation to other species This volume aims to start a conversation about aging by taking its more than human participants seriously that is not only as a support for or context of human aging but also more symmetrically as agents and subjects in the process of aging The contributors draw upon richly descriptive ethnographic accounts including moments of connection between seniors and dogs in a long term care facility human care for aging laboratory animals and robotic companionship in later life The ethnographies in this volume not only enrich our understanding of more than human companionship during the human aging process but also challenge and urge us to rethink what it means to live later in life in ecologically entangled social and moral worlds

Better Than Human Allen Buchanan,2011-10-04 Is it right to use biomedical technologies to make us better than well or even perhaps better than human Should we view our biology as fixed or should we try to improve on it College students are already taking cognitive enhancement drugs The U S army is already working to develop drugs and technologies to produce super soldiers Scientists already know how to use genetic engineering techniques to enhance the strength and memories of mice and the application of such technologies to humans is on the horizon In Better Than Human philosopher bioethicist Allen Buchanan grapples with the ethical dilemmas of the biomedical enhancement revolution Biomedical enhancements can make us smarter have better memories be stronger quicker have more stamina live much longer avoid the frailties of aging and enjoy richer emotional lives In spite of the benefits that biomedical enhancements may bring many people instinctively reject them Some worry that we will lose something important our appreciation for what we have or what makes human beings distinctively valuable Others assume that biomedical enhancements will only be available to the rich with the result that social inequalities will worsen Buchanan shows that the debate over enhancement has been distorted by false assumptions and misleading rhetoric To think clearly about enhancement we have to acknowledge that human nature is a mixed bag and that our species has many design flaws We should be open to the possibility of becoming better than human while never underestimating the risks that our attempts to improve may back fire More-Than-Human Choreography Moritz Frischkorn,2023-08-04 In the global context of the Great Acceleration things and people have been on the move more than ever before Moritz Frischkorn takes a fresh look at recent performing arts practices that deal with everyday objects on and beyond the stage Contrasting these practices with the business field of logistics he examines the aesthetic and ethical concerns of moving things Drawing on concepts from performance as well as Black studies and philosophy and based on an artistic research methodology the book formulates a notion of more than human choreography as an ecologically informed infinitely indebted practice of living within the material world The Routledge International Handbook of More-than-Human Studies Adrian Franklin,2023-11-24 This volume provides a state of the art overview of the field of more than human studies bringing together contemporary and essential content from leading authors across the discipline With attention to the intellectual history of the field its developments and extensions its applications and its significance to contemporary society it presents empirical studies and theoretical work covering long established disciplines as well as new writing on art history politics planning architecture research methodology and ethics An elaboration of the various dimensions of more than human studies The Routledge International Handbook of More than Human Studies constitutes essential reading for anyone studying or researching in this field Designing More-than-Human Smart Cities Sara Heitlinger,Marcus Foth,Rachel Clarke,2024-07-12 Climate change rapid urbanisation pandemics as well as innovations in technologies such as blockchain AI and IoT are all impacting urban space One response to such changes has been to make cities ecologically sustainable and smart The eco smart city for instance uses networked sensing cloud and mobile computing to optimise control and regulate urban processes and resources From real time bus information to autonomous electric vehicles smart parking and smart street lighting such initiatives are often presented as a social and environmental good Critics however increasingly argue that technologically driven and efficiency led approaches are too simplistic to deal with the complexities of urban life Sustainability in the smart city is predominantly performed in limited ways that leave little room for participation and citizen agency despite government efforts to integrate innovative technologies in more equitable ways More importantly there is a growing awareness that a human centred notion of cities in which urban space is designed for and inhabited by humans only is no longer tenable Within the age of the Anthropocene a term used to refer to a new geological era in which human activity is transforming Earth systems accelerating climate change and causing mass extinctions scholars and practitioners are working generatively by acknowledging the entanglements between human and non human others including plants animals insects as well as soil water and sensors and their data in urban life In Designing More than Human Smart Cities renowned researchers and practitioners from urban planning architecture environmental humanities geography design arts and computing critically explore smart cities beyond a human centred approach They respond to the complex interrelations between human and non human others in urban space Through theory policy and practice past and present and thinking speculatively about how smart cities may evolve in the future the book makes a timely contribution to lively contemporary scientific and political debates on genuinely sustainable smart cities

The City Is More Than Human Frederick L. Brown, 2016-10-03 Winner of the 2017 Virginia Marie Folkins Award Association of King County Historical Organizations AKCHO Winner of the 2017 Hal K Rothman Book Prize Western History Association Seattle would not exist without animals Animals have played a vital role in shaping the city from its founding amid existing indigenous towns in the mid nineteenth century to the livestock friendly town of the late nineteenth century to the pet friendly livestock averse modern city When newcomers first arrived in the 1850s they hastened to assemble the familiar cohort of cattle horses pigs chickens and other animals that defined European agriculture This in turn contributed to the dispossession of the Native residents of the area However just as various animals were used to create a Euro American city the elimination of these same animals from Seattle was key to the creation of the new middle class neighborhoods of the twentieth century As dogs and cats came to symbolize home and family Seattleites relationship with livestock became distant and exploitative demonstrating the deep social contradictions that characterize the modern American metropolis Throughout Seattle s history people have sorted animals into categories and into places as a way of asserting power over animals other people and property In The City Is More Than Human Frederick Brown explores the dynamic troubled relationship humans have with animals In so doing he challenges us to acknowledge the role of animals of all sorts in the making and remaking of cities
