

A brief, annotated bibliography of the history of the Kansas Academy of Science

MICHAEL J. EVERHART¹

Sternberg Museum of Natural History, Fort Hays State University, Hays, Kansas
I, Co-editor, Transactions, Kansas Academy of Science – meverhar@fhsu.edu

Founded in 1868, the Kansas Academy of Science celebrated its 140th year in 2008. The current volume of the Transactions is the 111th to be published since 1872. Technology has changed greatly since the printer (Miller Brothers, Topeka) hand-set the pages of the first volume in lead type. One hundred and forty years later, the co-editors review and format papers that they received in digital form via the Internet for publication on personal computers, a process that could have hardly been imagined by the founders of the Academy. While the distribution of the early volumes of the Transactions was greatly limited by the distances and communications systems of the day, the current volumes are made quickly available around the world via the Internet. Most recently, all of the volumes published by the Kansas Academy of Science have been scanned and digitized by JSTOR. One of the useful spin-offs of this effort to preserve the Transactions in digital format is the ability to do a detailed search for information contained in those volumes published since 1872.

Schoewe (1964, v.) was among the first to comment on the need for a searchable bibliography for the Transactions as a result of his earlier research on the geography of Kansas and noted that volumes 1-65 (through 1962) included more than 22,000 pages. His bibliography (ibid.) of the Transactions includes 1415 authors and 2763 articles, and also contains 14 tables of historical information about the Academy. Since that time, however, another 46 volumes and more than 12,000 pages have been published. Digitization by JSTOR in 2005 makes all but the most recent 3 volumes of the publication searchable. Online publication of the last three years of the Transactions by BioOne means that all 111 volumes are now available for downloading.

Since the publication of the first volume of the Transactions, various members have written articles relating the history of the Academy. In the first issue, John Parker (1872, p. 4-5) summarized the founding of the Kansas Academy of Science and the first four meetings. He noted that a letter had been published in the [Kansas] Journal of Education inviting "all persons in the State interested in natural science to meet at Topeka on the first Tuesday of September next, at 3 P.M. at the college building, for the purpose of organizing a State Natural History Society." Parker was among the group that met on September 1, 1868 and officially formed the Kansas Natural History Society. B.F. Mudge was elected the first President of the society and Parker served as its first Secretary. The second meeting was also held in Topeka and the officers were re-elected. During the third meeting in 1870, it was decided that the scope of the society should be enlarged to include all fields of science and in 1871 the name was officially changed to the Kansas Academy of Science. According to Harshbarger (1918), Mudge served as the President or Vice-President of the KAS during the last 5 years of his life and never missed a meeting.

In his address to the 16th Annual Meeting of the Kansas Academy of Science, the outgoing President, Dr. A.H. Thompson (1884, p. 7), noted that "Prof. J. D. Parker was the principal actor in the origination of the Society, and to him is due its suggestion, inception, and exertions." The text of Parker's 1868 letter was included in Thompson's address.
