Language-Paradox-Poetics James J.Y. Liu,2014-07-14 In attempting to define a poetics of paradox from a traditional Chinese standpoint James Liu explores through a comparative approach linguistic textual and interpretive problems of relevance to Western literary criticism Liu s study evolves from a paradoxical view originating from early Confucian and Daoist philosophical texts that the less is said in poetry the more is meant Such a view implied the existence of paradox in the very use of language and led traditional Chinese hermeneutics to a study of metaparadox the use of language to explicate texts the meaning of which transcends language itself As Liu illustrates elements of traditional Chinese hermeneutics with examples of poetic and critical works he makes comparisons with the works of such Western literary figures as Shakespeare Mallarme Pound Ionesco Derrida and Shepard The comparisons bring to light a crucial difference in conceptualization of language Chinese critics especially those influenced by Daoism and Buddhism seem to have held a deitic view of language language points to things whereas Western critics seem to have thought of language as primarily mimetic language represents things Liu examines the consequences of these views showing how both offer insights into the meaning of text and to what extent both have led to a metaparadox of interpretation Originally published in 1988 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905
