Archean Evolution of the Pilbara Craton and Fortescue Basin Arthur H. Hickman, 2023-03-09 One of today s major geoscientific controversies centres on the origin of the Archean granite greenstone terranes Is the geology of these scattered remnants of our planet s early crust consistent with the theory that modern style plate tectonic processes operated from the early Archean or does it indicate that tectonic and magmatic processes were different in the Archean Earth has clearly evolved since its initial formation so at what stage did its processes of crustal growth first resemble those of today The logical place to seek answers to these intriguing and important questions is within the best preserved early Archean crust The Pilbara region of northwest Australia is internationally famous for its abundant and exceptionally well preserved fossil evidence of early life However until recently the area has received much less recognition for the key evidence it provides on early Archean crustal evolution This book presents and interprets this evidence through a new stage by stage account of the development of the Pilbara s geological record between 3 53 and 2 63 Ga The Archean Pilbara crust represents one fragment of Earth s oldest known supercontinent Vaalbara which also included the Kaapvaal Craton of southern Africa Recognition of Vaalbara expands the background database for both these areas allowing us to more fully understand each of them

Murujuga José Antonio González Zarandona, 2020-01-17 A fascinating case study of the archaeological site at Murujuga Australia Located in the Dampier Archipelago of Western Australia Murujuga is the single largest archaeological site in the world It contains an estimated one million petroglyphs or rock art motifs produced by the Indigenous Australians who have historically inhabited the archipelago To date there has been no comprehensive survey of the site s petroglyphs or those who created them Since the 1960s regional mining interests have caused significant damage to this site destroying an estimated 5 to 25 percent of the petroglyphs in Murujuga Today Murujuga holds the unenviable status of being one of the most endangered archaeological sites in the world Jos Antonio Gonz lez Zarandona provides a full postcolonial analysis of Murujuga as well as a geographic and archaeological overview of the site its ethnohistory and its considerable significance to Indigenous groups before examining the colonial mistreatment of Murujuga from the seventeenth century to the present Drawing on a range of postcolonial perspectives Zarandona reads the assaults on the rock art of Murujuga as instances of what he terms landscape iconoclasm the destruction of art and landscapes central to group identity in pursuit of ideological political and economic dominance Viewed through the lens of landscape iconoclasm the destruction of Murujuga can be understood as not only the result of economic pressures but also as a means of reinforcing through neglect abandonment fragmentation and even certain practices of heritage preservation the colonial legacy in Western Australia Murujuga provides a case study through which to examine and begin to reject archaeology s global entanglement with colonial intervention and the politics of heritage preservation
