St. John,Michael D. Parsons,2005-09-23 Much of the twentieth century saw broad political support for public funding of American higher education Liberals supported public investment because it encouraged social equity conservatives because it promoted economic development Recently however the politics of higher education have become more contentious Conservatives advocate deep cuts in public financing liberals want to expand enrollment and increase diversity Some public universities have embraced privatization while federal aid for students increasingly emphasizes middle class affordability over universal access In Public Funding of Higher Education scholars and practitioners address the complexities of this new climate and its impact on policy and political advocacy at the federal state and institutional levels Rethinking traditional rationales for public financing contributors to this volume offer alternatives for policymakers administrators faculty students and researchers struggling with this difficult practical dynamic Contributors M Christopher Brown II Pennsylvania State University Jason L Butler University of Illinois Choong Geun Ching Indiana University Clifton F Conrad University of Wisconsin Madison Saran Donahoo University of Illinois James Farmer JA SIG uPortal James C Hearn Vanderbilt University Janet M Holdsworth University of Minnesota Don Hossler Indiana University John R Thelin University of Kentucky Mary Louise Trammell University of Arizona David J Weerts University of Wisconsin Madison William Zumeta University of Washington The Politics of Performance Funding for Higher Education Kevin J. Dougherty,Rebecca S. Natow,2015-05-15 The first nation wide analysis of the politics of performance funding in higher education Performance funding ties state support of colleges and universities directly to institutional performance on specific outcomes including retention number of credits accrued graduation and job placement The theory is that introducing market like forces will prod institutions to become more efficient and effective In The Politics of Performance Funding for Higher Education Kevin J Dougherty and Rebecca S Natow explore the sometimes puzzling evolution of this mode of funding higher education Drawing on an eight state study of performance funding in Florida Illinois Indiana Missouri Ohio South Carolina Tennessee and Washington Dougherty and Natow shed light on the social and political factors affecting the origins evolution and demise of these programs Their findings uncover patterns of frequent adoption discontinuation and re adoption Of the thirty six states that have ever adopted performance funding two thirds discontinued it although many of those later re adopted it Even when performance funding programs persist over time they can undergo considerable changes in both the amount of state funding and in the indicators used to allocate funding Yet performance funding continues to attract interest from federal and state officials state policy associations and major foundations as a way of improving educational outcomes The authors explore the various forces actors and motives behind the adoption discontinuation and transformation of performance funding programs They compare U S programs to international models and they gauge the likely future of performance funding given the volatility of the political forces driving it Aimed at educators sociologists political scientists and policy makers this book will be hailed as the definitive assessment of the origins and evolution of performance funding 2002 Year Book, Australia ,

Funding Public Colleges and Universities for Performance Joseph C. Burke,2002-10-10 This is the first comprehensive study of performance funding of public colleges and universities which directly ties some state allocations to institutional results on designated indicators The book examines performance funding as a national phenomenon identifying the champions and critics of the program the arguments for and against its adoption the most common performance measures used for funding the characteristics that separate stable from unstable initiatives and the inherent possibilities and problems The authors include case studies of performance funding in Tennessee Missouri Florida Ohio and South Carolina and explore the reasons why Arkansas Colorado Kentucky and Minnesota first adopted and later abandoned their programs They examine problems with performance funding such as the reluctance of the academic community to agree on reasonable goals for undergraduate education or the failure to apply performance funding to the academic departments that are mostly responsible for institutional results on many of the performance indicators The contributors conclude that although the future of performance funding remains cloudy one aspect is becoming clear taxpayers are unlikely to continue to accept the proposition that performance should count in all endeavors except state funding for higher education Contributors include E Grady Brogue Joseph C Burke Juan C Copa Patrick Dallet Terri Lessard Gary Moden Dr Robert B Stein Michael Williford and David J Wright The Governance of British Higher Education Ted Tapper,2007-05-05 How has the system of governance changed Do British higher education institutions still exercise autonomous control over their development as was widely believed to be the case but a few years ago These questions are pursued through a three pronged strategy Firstly to examine the institutional changes which have occurred since the 1988 Education Reform and the emergence of the funding council model of governance In particular we want to know how the various institutional actors the higher education institutions the government departments and the funding councils interact with one another to shape policy outcomes

Secondly to explore the political context within which these institutional actors have to work This means examining the role of the political parties policy networks and the parliamentary forces all of which have a major stake in influencing the direction of higher education policy This section of the book incorporates the move towards political devolution in the United Kingdom and examines what is different and what is similar about higher education policy making in Scotland and Wales in comparison to England Thirdly the book observes the process of policy making and change in relation to critical issues the funding of higher education the research assessment exercises the quality assurance regime and the widening participation agenda In effect it examines policy making in action Funding Higher Education in Sub-Saharan Africa D.

Teferra,2013-10-08 Virtually all countries in the world are struggling to provide the necessary resources to Higher Education The challenges are particularly complex for economically poor countries in Africa which have recorded massive expansion in the past decade This book analyzes the state of funding and financing higher education in Sub Saharan Africa Improving Access to Affordable University Education in Saskatchewan John B. Conway,2004

Higher Education Act Amendments of 1998 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Labor and Human Resources,1998 American Universities and Colleges James J.
