Flying Crooked A Story Of Accepting Cancer:

Flying Crooked Jan Michael, 2005 There are many books about the processes people go through when they discover they have cancer What makes Flying Crooked different is the author's acceptance of the disease and its consequences She continues to enjoy life refuses radiotherapy and rejects the idea of wearing a prosthesis after a mastectomy The choices she makes are in sharp contrast to those made by her ex lover Simon who shortly after her operation is diagnosed with prostate cancer Their different ways of coping form a well balanced diptych on her part acceptance and the peace that this brings on his fighting and anger at the cost of precious energy and enjoyment Flying Crooked describes the process of a search for balance The open direct and unsentimental manner in which Michael describes her decisions as well as her experiences in and out of the hospital take this from an account of coping with disease to an inspirational story of love friendship and faith

The Body as Interface Sabine Sielke, Elisabeth Schäfer-Wünsche, 2007 The body is a battleground As such it has been at the center of debates in cultural and gender studies for over two decades The concept of a culturally constructed gendered racialized and class contoured body which emerged from these debates is meanwhile being challenged though by an increasing impact of the life sciences Evolving from neurobiology molecular genetics and biotechnology are projections of a post or transhuman subject as well as new insights into our corporeality and the ways our bodies interrelate with the world Situating the body at an intersection of a range of discourses in the human social and natural sciences this collection of essays explores this fundamental shift by way of dialogues between disciplines in the course of which our sense of beauty and human nature memory and trauma immunity power and pain is being transformed Quill & Quire, 2005 New Books
