Critical Landscape Planning during the Belt and Road Initiative Ashley Scott Kelly, Xiaoxuan Lu, 2021-09-29 This open access book traces the development of landscapes along the 414 kilometer China Laos Railway one of the first infrastructure projects implemented under China's Belt and Road Initiative BRI and which is due for completion at the end of 2021 Written from the perspective of landscape architecture and intended for planners and related professionals engaged in the development and conservation of these landscapes this book provides history planning pedagogy and interdisciplinary framing for working alongside the often opaque planning design and implementation processes of large scale infrastructure It complicates simplistic notions of development and urbanization frequently reproduced in the Laos China frontier region Many of the projects and sites investigated in this book are recent firsts in Laos Laos's first wildlife sanctuary for trafficked endangered species its first botanical garden and its first planting plan for a community forest Most often the agents and accomplices of neoliberal development the planning and design professions including landscape architecture have little dialogue with either the mainstream natural sciences or critical social sciences that form the discourse of projects in Laos and comparable contexts Covering diverse conceptions and issues of development including cultural and scientific knowledge exchanges between Laos and China nature tourism connectivity and new town planning this book also features nine planning proposals for Laos generated through this research initiative since the railway's groundbreaking in 2016 Each proposal promotes a wider landscape approach to development and deploys landscape architecture's spatial and ecological acumen to synthesize critical development studies with the planner's capacity if not naive predilection to intervene on the ground Ultimately this book advocates the cautious engagement of the professionally oriented built environment disciplines such as regional planning civil engineering and landscape architecture with the landscapes of development institutions and environmental NGOs

Basic and Clinical Environmental Approaches in Landscape Planning Hiroyuki Shimizu, Akito Murayama, 2014-01-30 Our societies need to solve difficult issues to attain sustainability The main challenges include among others global warming demographic change an energy crisis and loss of

Landscape Planning with Ecosystem Services Christina von Haaren, Andrew A. Lovett, Christian Albert, 2019-06-25 Human well being depends in many ways on maintaining the stock of natural resources which deliver the services from which human's benefit However these resources and flows of services are increasingly threatened by unsustainable and competing land uses Particular threats exist to those public goods whose values are not well represented in markets or whose deterioration will only affect future generations As market forces alone are not sufficient effective means for local and regional planning are needed in order to safeguard scarce natural resources coordinate land uses and create sustainable landscape structures This book argues that a solution to such challenges in Europe can be found by merging the landscape planning tradition with ecosystem services concepts Landscape planning has strengths in recognition of public benefits and implementation mechanisms while the ecosystem services approach makes the connection between the status of natural assets and human well being more explicit It can also provide an economic perspective focused on individual preferences and benefits which helps validate the acceptability of environmental planning goals Thus linking landscape planning and ecosystem services provides a two way benefit creating a usable science to meet the needs of local and regional decision making The book is structured around the Driving forces Pressures States Impacts Responses framework providing an introduction to relevant concepts methodologies and techniques It presents a new ecosystem services informed approach to landscape planning that constitutes both a framework and toolbox for students and practitioners to address the environmental and landscape challenges of 21st century Europe

Landscape Planning at the Local Level Luigi La Riccia, 2017-06-01 The book showing virtuous examples of urban planning in Italy and Europe exposes certain doubts and open questions what is the new role of urban planning What actions rules are now achievable for the protection planning and management of local scale landscapes The overall reflections gathered in the book contribute to suggest innovative visions about landscape planning at local scale seen as first steps towards a more functional change of perspective New landscapes are the result of local planning practices that no longer seem able to understand the current society through urban design Public space and new urban centralities interact with the increasingly complex functions of social life and mark the distance from territorial values relying less and less on physical relationships economic and functional and increasingly on symbolic and intangible relationships as cultural identity Landscape is essential for the sustainable future of the urban and rural territory the landscape quality is a factor of economic competitiveness and acts also as a factor of social cohesion and integration
