Language Culture And Translating:

Language, Culture, and Translating Eugene Albert Nida, 1993      Language, Culture, and Translating [], Eugene Albert Nida, 1993      Between Languages and Cultures Anuradha Dingwaney, Carol Maier, 2010-11-23 Translated texts are often either uncritically consumed by readers teacher and scholars or seen to represent an ineluctable loss a diminishing of original texts Translation however is a cultural practice influenced also by social and political imperatives which can open more doors than it closes The essays in this book show how the act of translation when vigilantly and critically attended to becomes a means for active interrogation      Translation as Communication across Languages and Cultures Juliane House, 2015-10-30 In this interdisciplinary book Juliane House breaks new ground by situating translation within Applied Linguistics In thirteen chapters she examines translation as a means of communication across different languages and cultures provides a critical overview of different approaches to translation of the link between culture and translation and between views of context and text in translation Featuring an account of translation from a linguistic cognitive perspective House covers problematic issues such as the existence of universals of translation cases of untranslatability and ways and means of assessing the quality of a translation Recent methodological and research avenues such as the role of corpora in translation and the effects of globalization processes on translation are presented in a neutral non biased manner The book concludes with a thorough historical account of the role of translation in foreign language learning and teaching and a discussion of new challenges and problems of the professional practice of translation in our world today Written by a highly experienced teacher and researcher in the field Translation as Communication across Languages and Cultures is an essential resource for students and researchers of Translation Studies Applied Linguistics and Communication Studies      Cultural Functions of Translation Christina Schäffner, Helen Kelly-Holmes, 1995 This book discusses the far reaching effects that translated texts may have in the target culture and illustrates that translation as a culture transcending process is an important way of forming cultural identities and of positioning cultures Lawrence Venuti discusses the enormous power translation wields in constructing representations of foreign cultures The conservative or transgressive effects of translation are illustrated by several translation projects from different periods novels philosophical texts and religious texts Candace Seguinot focuses on effects of globalisation for translating advertising She argues that the marketing of goods and services across cultural boundaries involves an understanding of culture and semiotics that goes well beyond both language and design Translation is a matter of making intelligible a whole culture The translator as the expert communicator is at the crucial centre of a long chain of communication from the original initiator to the ultimate receiver of a message The papers and the debates take up important related issues translation strategies foreignising vs domesticating strategies translation and marketing strategies the knowledge required of translators as interlingual and intercultural mediators ethical responsibilities and consequences for translator training Contributors to the debates include Mona Baker Terry Hale Paul

Kussmaul Kirsten Malmkjaer Peter Newmark and Douglas Robinson

The Translator as Mediator of Cultures

Humphrey Tonkin, Maria Esposito Frank, 2010-07-22 If it is bilingualism that transfers information and ideas from culture to culture it is the translator who systematizes and generalizes this process The translator serves as a mediator of cultures In this collection of essays based on a conference held at the University of Hartford a group of individuals professional translators linguists and literary scholars exchange their views on translation and its power to influence literary traditions and to shape cultural and economic identities The authors explore the implications of their views on the theory and craft of translation both written and oral in an era of unsettling globalizing forces The Metalanguage of Translation Yves

Gambier, Luc van Doorslaer, 2009 Let the meta discussion begin James Holmes urged in 1972 Coming almost forty years later years filled with fascinating and often unexpected developments in the interdiscipline of Translation Studies this volume offers the reader a multiplicity of meta perspectives while also moving the discussion forward Indeed the re production and re use of metalinguistic metaphors frame and partly determine our views on research so such a discussion is vital as it is in any scholarly discipline Among other questions the eleven contributors draw the reader's attention to the often puzzling variations of usage and conceptualization in both the theory and the practice of translation First published as a special issue of Target 19 2 2007 the volume runs the gamut of metalinguistic topics ranging from terminology localization and epistemological questions through the Chinese perspective to the conceptual mapping of the online Translation Studies

Bibliography Translation and Culture Katherine M. Faull, 2004 How we view the foreign presented either in the interrelated forms of culture language or text determines to a large degree the way in which we translate This volume of essays examines the cultural politics of translation that have determined the production and dissemination of the foreign in domestic cultures as varied as contemporary North America Europe and Israel The essays address from a variety of theoretical perspectives the question posed almost two hundred years ago by the German philosopher Friedrich Schleiermacher of whether the translator should foreignize the domestic or domesticate the foreign Language, Culture and Translating Jun Gao, 2011-01 In this book the author makes a study of language culture and translating with special attention given to the relationship between Chinese and English This book consists of five chapters Chapter One discusses different views on culture and elicits the mutual interdependence between language and culture Special attention is paid to the importance of cultural teaching and learning In Chapter Two the focus is upon the close relationship between culture and translating highlighting the importance of biculturalism to a translator Chapter Three reviews some influential translation theories i e functional equivalence and the semantic and communicative translation It also treats of translating culture loaded expressions in terms of semiotics and classifies signs reflecting cultural differences into 3 different types polysemic synonymic and divergent Chapter Four is devoted to discussing the strategies of translating some culture loaded words and expressions i e kinship terms color terms idioms and advertising Chapter Five serves as the concluding part Languages

- Cultures - Worldviews Adam Głaz, 2019-07-12 This edited book explores languages and cultures or linguacultures from a translation perspective resting on the assumption that they find expression as linguacultural worldviews Specifically it investigates how these worldviews emerge how they are constructed shaped and modified in and through translation understood both as a process and a product The book's content progresses from general to specific from the notions of worldview and translation through a consideration of how worldviews are shaped in and through language to a discussion of worldviews in translation both in macro scale and in specific details of language structure and use The contributors to the volume are linguists linguistic anthropologists practising translators and or translation studies scholars and the book will be of interest to scholars and students in any of these fields Language, Culture and Power C. T. Indra, R. Rajagopalan, 2017-11-13 This volume examines the relationship between language and power across cultural boundaries It evaluates the vital role of translation in redefining culture and ethnic identity During the first phase of colonialism mid 18th to late 19th century the English speaking missionaries and East India Company functionaries in South India were impelled to master Tamil the local language in order to transact their business Tamil also comprised ancient classical literary works especially ethical and moral literature which were found especially suited to the preferences of Christian missionaries This interface between English and Tamil acted as a conduit for cultural transmission among different groups The essays in this volume explore the symbiotic relation between English and Tamil during the late colonial and postcolonial as also the modernist and the postmodernist periods The book showcases the modernity of contemporary Tamil culture as reflected in its literary and artistic productions poetry fiction short fiction and drama and outlines the aesthetics philosophy and methodology of these translations This volume and its companion which looks at the period between 1750 to 1900 CE cover the late colonial and postcolonial era and will be of interest to students scholars and researchers of translation studies literature linguistics sociology and social anthropology South Asian studies colonial and postcolonial studies literary and critical theory as well as culture studies Translating Cultures David Katan, 2014-06-03 As the 21st century gets into stride so does the call for a discipline combining culture and translation This second edition of Translating Cultures retains its original aim of putting some rigour and coherence into these fashionable words and lays the foundation for such a discipline This edition has not only been thoroughly revised but it has also been expanded In particular a new chapter has been added which focuses specifically on training translators for translational and intercultural competencies The core of the book provides a model for teaching culture to translators interpreters and other mediators It introduces the reader to current understanding about culture and aims to raise awareness of the fundamental role of culture in constructing perceiving and translating reality Culture is perceived throughout as a system for orienting experience and a basic presupposition is that the organization of experience is not reality but rather a simplified model and a distortion which varies from culture to culture Each culture acts as a frame within which external signs or reality are interpreted The approach is interdisciplinary taking ideas from contemporary translation theory anthropology Bateson's logical typing and metamessage theories Bandler and Grinder's NLP meta model theory and Hallidayan functional grammar Authentic texts and translations are offered to illustrate the various strategies that a cultural mediator can adopt in order to make the different cultural frames he or she is mediating between more explicit

Translating Cultures Abraham Rosman, Paula G. Rubel, 2020-06-15 The task of the anthropologist is to take ideas concepts and beliefs from one culture and translate them into first another language and then into the language of anthropology This process is both fascinating and complex Not only does it raise questions about the limitations of language but it also challenges the ability of the anthropologist to communicate culture accurately In recent years postmodern theories have tended to call into question the legitimacy of translation altogether This book acknowledges the problems involved but shows definitively that translating cultures can successfully be achieved The way we talk write read and interpret are all part of a translation process Many of us are not aware of translation in our everyday lives but for those living outside their native culture surrounded by cultural difference the ability to translate experiences and thoughts becomes a major issue Drawing on case studies and theories from a wide range of disciplines including anthropology philosophy linguistics art history folk theory and religious studies this book systematically interrogates the meaning complexities and importance of translation in anthropology and answers a wide range of provocative questions such as Can we unravel the true meaning of the Christian doctrine of trinity when there have been so many translations What impact do colonial and postcolonial power structures have on our understanding of other cultures How can we use art as a means of transgressing the limitations of linguistic translation Translating Cultures Perspectives on Translation and Anthropology is the first book fully to address translation in anthropology It combines textual and ethnographic analysis to produce a benchmark publication that will be of great importance to anthropologists philosophers linguists historians and cultural theorists alike

Translating Childhoods Marjorie Faulstich Orellana, 2009-05-18 Though the dynamics of immigrant family life has gained attention from scholars little is known about the younger generation often considered invisible Translating Childhoods a unique contribution to the study of immigrant youth brings children to the forefront by exploring the work they perform as language and culture brokers and the impact of this largely unseen contribution Skilled in two vernaculars children shoulder basic and more complicated verbal exchanges for non English speaking adults Readers hear through children's own words what it means to be in the middle or the keys to communication that adults otherwise would lack Drawing from ethnographic data and research in three immigrant communities Marjorie Faulstich Orellana's study expands the definition of child labor by assessing children's roles as translators as part of a cost equation in an era of global restructuring and considers how sociocultural learning and development is shaped as a result of children's contributions as translators

New Trends in Translation and Cultural Identity Micaela Muñoz-Calvo, Maria del Carmen Buesa Gómez, Maria-Angeles Ruiz Moneva, 2009-03-26 New Trends in Translation and Cultural Identity is a collection of thirty enlightening articles that will stimulate deep reflection for those interested in translation and cultural identity and will be an essential resource for scholars teachers and students working in the field From a broad range of different theoretical perspectives and frameworks the authors provide a multicultural reflection on translation issues fostering intercultural communication knowledge and understanding crucial to effective transfer and intercultural exchange within the global village

Linguacultural Hybridity and Translation Zahra Reyhani Monfared,2024-10-28 In an increasingly globalised world the cultures of Orient and Occident are no longer firmly separated This hybridity is also a part of literature a concept which needs to be explored in Translation Studies This study examines its evolution across language culture literature and translation It introduces a sociolinguistic approach for studying marginalized hybrid texts and their translations into English focusing on the power dynamics that dichotomize the world into First Third worlds The author examines how sociological factors in central societies affect the acceptance and recognition of marginalized literary works within Western literary circles and world literature The study analyses classical and modern Persian literature It highlights the double voicedness in these texts By illustrating how hybrid elements from R m s mystical poems and Hid yat s surrealist prose are re created in their English translations it elevates the analysis of hybrid elements to a languacultural level
