The Transformational-Generative Paradigm and Modern Linguistic Theory E. F. K. Koerner, 1975-01-01 This volume reflects the fact that the possibilities in theory construction allow for a much wider spectrum than students of linguistics have perhaps been led to believe It consists of articles by scholars of differing generations and widely varying academic persuasions some have received their initiation to the trade within the framework of transformational generative grammar some in one or the other structuralist mould yet others in the philology and linguistics of particular languages and language families They all share however some doubts concerning characteristic attitudes and procedures of present day mainstream linguistics All want not a uniformity of ideological stance but a union of individualists working towards the advancement of theory and empirical accountability Interculturalism Beatriz Penas, Beatriz Penas Ibáñez, María Carmen López Sáenz, 2006 This volume explores the relation between identity and diversity as the essential condition of interculturalism and the sometimes positive sometimes negative role that identity and diversity play within intercultural dialogue in an increasingly globalised world An international conference in Madrid October 2003 brought together scholars from four continents and allowed them to share their knowledge and learn about the issues of identity and diversity philological and philosophical reflections The present volume contains a selection of the conference papers The contributors explore the dynamics of identity as a process open to differences Although identity and difference are not exclusively discursive it is discourse and natural language that incorporate them Linguistics and Philosophy Adam Makkai, Alan K.
