Language Inequality and Distortion in Intercultural Communication Yukio Tsuda, 1986-01-01 This study sheds light on the problem of communicative inequality neglected both by linguists and communication scholars among speakers of different languages It provides a four step Critical Theory analysis of language based inequality and distortion between speakers of a few dominant languages especially English and speakers of minority languages in the context of international and intercultural communication Based on a theoretical framework of Distorted Communication developed by J Habermas and C M Iler the analysis focuses on a critical description definition and interpretation of Distorted Intercultural Communication and exposes the ideology that legitimates linguistic inequality and distortion in communication

Voices of Modernity Richard Bauman, Charles L. Briggs, 2003-07-03 Language and tradition have long been relegated to the sidelines as scholars have considered the role of politics science technology and economics in the making of the modern world This reading of over two centuries of philosophy political theory anthropology folklore and history argues that new ways of imagining language and representing supposedly premodern people the poor labourers country folk non europeans and women made political and scientific revolutions possible The connections between language ideologies privileged linguistic codes and political concepts and practices shape the diverse ways we perceive ourselves and others This 2003 book demonstrates that contemporary efforts to make schemes of social inequality based on race gender class and nationality seem compelling and legitimate rely on deeply rooted ideas about language and tradition Showing how critics of modernity unwittingly reproduce these foundational fictions it suggests strategies for challenging the undemocratic influence of these voices of modernity
