Naming the World Andrew Cowell, 2018-11-13 Naming the World examines language shift among the Northern Arapaho of the Wind River Reservation Wyoming and the community's diverse responses as it seeks social continuity Andrew Cowell argues that rather than a single Arapaho culture we find five distinctive communities of practice on the reservation each with differing perspectives on social and more than human power and the human relationships that enact power As the Arapaho people resist Euro American assimilation or domination the Arapaho language and the idea that the language is sacred are key rallying points but also key points of contestation Cowell finds that while many at Wind River see the language as crucial for maintaining access to more than human power others primarily view the language in terms of peer oriented identities as Arapaho Indian or non White These different views lead to quite different language usage and attitudes in relation to place naming personal naming cultural metaphors new word formation and the understudied practice of folk etymology Cowell presents data from conversations and other natural discourse to show the diversity of everyday speech and attitudes and he links these data to broader debates at Wind River and globally about the future organization of indigenous societies and the nature of Arapaho and indigenous identity

Cases on Communication Disorders in Culturally Diverse Populations Scott, Diane M., 2020-01-03 Communication disorders are impairments in the ability to receive, send, process and comprehend hearing language and/or speech. While the number of culturally diverse populations is growing in the United States, speech language pathologists and audiologists lack information on serving these culturally diverse populations appropriately and effectively. Cases on Communication Disorders in Culturally Diverse Populations is an essential research publication that provides culturally competent hearing language and speech services and cases across age groups, communication disorders, and culturally diverse populations. These case studies offer a practical and detailed means for assisting professionals in providing culturally appropriate speech language and hearing services. Highlighting various topics such as counseling, language learning, and genetics, this book is indispensable for speech language pathologists, audiologists, counselors, administrators, academicians, researchers, practitioners, and students.

Diné Peter Iverson, 2002-08-28 The most complete and current history of the largest American Indian nation in the U.S. based on extensive new archival research, traditional histories, interviews, and personal observation.

Navajo Sovereignty Lloyd L. Lee, 2017-04-11 The last few decades have given rise to an electrifying movement of Native American activism, scholarship, and creative work challenging five hundred years of U.S. colonization of Native lands. Indigenous communities are envisioning and building their nations and are making decolonial strides toward regaining power from colonial forces. The Navajo Nation is among the many Native nations in the United States pushing back. In this new book, Diné author Lloyd L. Lee asks fellow Navajo scholars, writers, and community members to envision sovereignty for the Navajo Nation. He asks: 1. what is Navajo sovereignty? 2. how do various Navajo institutions exercise sovereignty? 3. what challenges does Navajo sovereignty face in the coming generations? and 4. how did individual Diné envision sovereignty? Contributors expand from the questions Lee lays before them to touch on how Navajo sovereignty is understood in Western law, how various institutions of the Navajo Nation exercise sovereignty, what challenges it faces in coming generations, and how individual Diné envision power, authority, and autonomy for the people. A companion to Diné Perspectives: Revitalizing and Reclaiming Navajo Thought, each chapter offers the contributors' individual perspectives. The book, which is organized into four parts, discusses Western law's view of Diné sovereignty, research, activism, creativity, and community, and Navajo sovereignty in traditional education. Above all, Lee and the contributing scholars and community members call for the rethinking of Navajo sovereignty in a way more rooted in Navajo beliefs, culture, and values. Contributors: Raymond D. Austin, Bidtah N. Becker, Manley A. Begay Jr., Avery Denny, Larry W. Emerson, Colleen Gorman, Michelle L. Hale, Michael Lerma, Leola Tsinnajinnie.

Framing Languages and Literacies Margaret R. Hawkins, 2013-04-12 In this seminal volume, leading language and literacy scholars clearly articulate and explicate major social perspectives and approaches in the fields of language and literacy studies. Each approach draws on distinct bodies of literature and traditions and uses distinct identifiers.

labels and constellations of concepts each has been taken up across diverse global contexts and is used as rationale and guide for the design of research and of educational policies and practices Authors discuss the genesis and historical trajectory of the approach with which they are associated offer their unique perspectives rationales and engagements and investigate implications for understanding language and literacy use in and out of schools The premise of the book is that understanding concepts perspectives and approaches requires knowing the context in which they were created the rationale or purpose in creating them and how they have been taken up and applied in communities of practice Accessible yet theoretically rich this volume is indispensable for researchers students and professionals across the fields of language and literacy studies community it is trying to help. Instead, this volume proposes a model of Native American language revitalization that is different from the national official language model: one that respects and incorporates language variation and entertains variable outcomes. This is because it is based on Native American linguistic ideologies. This volume argues that the cookie-cutter application of the official language ideology is unethical because it undermines the intent of language revitalization itself: the continued daily meaningful use of a heritage language in its speech community.

Teaching Indigenous Students
Jon Reyhner, 2015-04-29

Indigenous students learn and retain more when teachers value the language and culture of the students' community and incorporate them into the curriculum. This is a principle enshrined in the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (2007) and borne out both by the successes of Indigenous language immersion schools and by the failures of past assimilationist practices and the recent English-only policies of the No Child Left Behind Act in the United States. Teaching Indigenous Students puts culturally based education squarely into practice. The volume, edited and with an introduction by leading American Indian education scholar Jon Reyhner, brings together new and dynamic research from established and emerging voices in the field of American Indian and Indigenous education. All of the contributions show how the quality of education for Indigenous students can be improved through the promotion of culturally and linguistically appropriate schooling. Grounded in place, community, and culture, the approaches set out in this volume reflect the firsthand experiences of teachers and students in interacting not just with texts and one another but also with the local community and environment. The authors address the specifics of teaching the full range of subjects: from learning literacy using culturally meaningful texts to inquiry-based science curricula and from math instruction that incorporates real-world experience to social studies that blend oral history and local culture with national and world history. Teaching Indigenous Students also emphasizes the importance of art, music, and physical education, both traditional and modern, in producing well-rounded human beings and helping students establish their identity as twenty-first-century Indigenous peoples.

Surveying the work of Indigenous language immersion schools around the world, this volume also holds out hope for the revitalization of Indigenous languages and traditional cultural values.

Reflections in Place
Donna Deyhle, 2022-12-06

Woven together in Donna Deyhle's ethnohistory are three generations and twenty-five years of friendship interviews and rich experience with Navajo women. Through a skillful blending of sources, Deyhle illuminates the devastating cultural consequences of racial stereotyping in the context of education. Longstanding racial tension in southeastern Utah frames this cross-generational set of portraits that together depict all aspects of this specifically American Indian struggle. Deyhle cites the left-handed compliment: Navajos work well with their hands, which she indicates represents the limiting and all too common appraisal of American Indian learning potential that she vehemently disputes and seeks to disprove. As a recognized authority on the subject, qualified by multiple degrees in racial and American Indian studies, Deyhle is able to chronicle the lives and survivance of three Navajo women in a way that is simultaneously ethnographic and moving. Her critique of the U.S. education system's underlying yet very real tendency toward structural discrimination takes shape in elegant prose that moves freely into and out of time and place The combination of substantive sources and touching personal experience forms a profound and enduring narrative of critical and current importance While this book stands as a powerful contribution to American Indian studies its compelling human elements will extend its appeal to anyone concerned with the ongoing plight of American Indians in the education system

Native American Language Ideologies Paul V. Kroskrity, Margaret C. Field, 2009-04-15 Beliefs and feelings about language vary dramatically within and across Native American cultural groups and are an acknowledged part of the processes of language shift and language death This volume samples the language ideologies of a wide range of Native American communities from the Canadian Yukon to Guatemala to show their role in sociocultural transformation These studies take up such active issues as insiderness in Cherokee language ideologies contradictions of space time for the Northern Arapaho language socialization and Paiute identity and orthography choices and language renewal among the Kiowa The authors including members of indigenous speech communities who participate in language renewal efforts discuss not only Native Americans conscious language ideologies but also the often revealing relationship between these beliefs and other more implicit realizations of language use as embedded in community practice The chapters discuss the impact of contemporary language issues related to grammar language use the relation between language and social identity and emergent language ideologies themselves in Native American speech communities And although they portray obvious variation in attitudes toward language across communities they also reveal commonalities notably the emergent ideological process of iconization between a language and various national ethnic and tribal identities As fewer Native Americans continue to speak their own language this timely volume provides valuable grounded studies of language ideologies in action those indigenous to Native communities as well as those imposed by outside institutions or language researchers It considers the emergent interaction of indigenous and imported ideologies and the resulting effect on language beliefs practices and struggles in today's Indian Country as it demonstrates the practical implications of recognizing a multiplicity of indigenous language ideologies and their impact on heritage language maintenance and renewal

Engaging Native American Publics Paul V. Kroskrity, Barbra A. Meek, 2017-07-14 Engaging Native American Publics considers the increasing influence of Indigenous groups as key audiences collaborators and authors with regards to their own linguistic documentation and representation The chapters critically examine a variety of North American case studies to reflect on the forms and effects of new collaborations between language researchers and Indigenous communities as well as the types and uses of products that emerge with notions of cultural maintenance and linguistic revitalization in mind In assessing the nature and degree of change from an early period of salvage research to a period of greater Indigenous self determination the volume addresses whether increased empowerment and accountability has truly transformed the terms of engagement and what the implications for the future might be
