Language And Context:

Language, Context, and Text Michael Alexander Kirkwood Halliday, Ruqaiya Hasan, 1985 Rethinking Context Alessandro Duranti, 1992-05-21 The last decade has seen a fundamental rethinking of the concept of context Rather than functioning solely as a constraint on linguistic performance context is now also analysed as a product of language use In this new perspective language and context are seen as interactively achieved phenomena rather than predefined sets of forms and contents The essays in this collection written by many of the leading figures in the social sciences critically reexamine the concept of context from a variety of different angles and propose new ways of thinking about it with reference to specific human activities such as face to face interaction radio talk medical diagnosis political encounters and socialisation practices Each essay is prefaced by an introduction by the editors which provides relevant theoretical and methodological background and demonstrates its relation to other essays in the volume The editors general introduction provides a lucid overview of the issues currently debated Rethinking Context will be required reading for everyone working within the fields of linguistic anthropology sociolinguistics discourse analysis pragmatics conversation analysis and the sociology of language

Language and Context Helen Leckie-Tarry, 1995-06-01 Language and Context breaks new ground in our understanding of the relationship between register genre and context Leckie Tarry argues convincingly and engagingly for a functional theory of language which specifies register in terms of contextual and linguistic features and which suggests a discursive relationship between the two Moving beyond the limits of much of today s theory this accessible volume develops a theoretical understanding of the relationship between text context language function and linguistic form Helen Leckie Tarry a specialist in the area of register and applied linguistics died in 1991 aged 49 Although she had finished a large part of this work her notes and draft chapters have been extensively edited by Professor David Birch David Birch is currently Professor of Communication and media Studies at Central Queensland University Australia and previously taught at Murdoch University Western Australia and the National University of Singapore Language, Context and Contextuality Osita Nwagbo, Temitope Ajayi, Jacob Oluwadoro, Esther Senayon, Yeseera Olosio, Bolanle Sogunro, 2025-02-07 This book of Festschrift is an amalgam of papers written by a collage of scholars on various subjects reflecting the multidisciplinary concerns of Professor Herbert Igboanusi Precisely the contributions are from fields such as sociolinguistics discourse analysis language in education English varieties literature and cultural linguistics Irrespective of the orientation and nationality of contributors the major focus of the papers was on the linguistic issues experiences and realities in Nigeria in whose frontiers the Festschrift recipient lives and works It is expected that this volume will be a worthy contribution to linguistic scholarship in Africa and will serve as a reference material to researchers across the world Language in Context Jason Stanley, 2007 Natural languages all contain constructions the interpretation of which depends upon the situation in which they are used In Language and Context Jason Stanley presents a series of essays which develop a theory of how the situation in which we speak interacts with the words we use to help produce what we say. The reason we can so smoothly operate with sentences that can be used to express very different items of information, Stanley argues, is that there are linguistically mandated constraints on the effects of the situation on what we say. These linguistically mandated constraints are most evident in the cases of sentences containing explicit pronouns such as "She is a mathematician" where interpretation of the information expressed is guided by the use of the pronoun "she." But even when such explicit pronouns are lacking, our sentences provide similar cues to allow our interlocutors to determine the information expressed. We are in the main confident that our interlocutors will smoothly grasp what we say because the grammar and meaning of our sentences encodes these constraints. In defending this theory, Stanley pays close attention to specific cases of context-sensitive constructions such as quantified noun phrases, comparative adjectives, and conditionals. Philosophers and cognitive scientists have appealed to the dependence of what is intuitively said by a sentence on the situation in which it is uttered to argue against the possibility of a systematic theory of meaning for natural language. The theory developed in this book is a vigorous defense of the possibility of a systematic theory of meaning for natural language against these influential tendencies.

Context in Language Learning and Language Understanding Kirsten Malmkjær, John Williams, 1998-10-08. The papers in this volume represent the views of a range of experts in a variety of language-related disciplines on the role which context plays in language learning and language understanding. The authors provide various theoretical constructs which help impose order on the apparent chaos of contextual factors which may have an influence on the production and comprehension of speech events. They focus on a variety of types of context including the context established by different speech communities, interpersonal contexts, the classroom context, and the context provided by the linguistic code itself. The papers illustrate how the treatment of context varies across the disciplines of linguistics, historical stylistics, applied linguistics, and psycholinguistics. Each paper is prefaced by an editorial introduction to help the reader trace out common themes and points of conflict.

Task-Based Language Teaching in Foreign Language Contexts Ali Shehadeh, Christine A. Coombe, 2012. This volume extends the Task-Based Language Teaching: Issues, Research, and Practice books series by deliberately exploring the potential of task-based language teaching (TBLT) in a range of EFL contexts. It is specifically devoted to providing empirical accounts about how TBLT practice is being developed and researched in diverse educational contexts, particularly where English is not the dominant language. By including contributions from settings as varied as Japan, China, Korea, Venezuela, Turkey, Spain, and France, this collection of 13 studies provides strong indications that the research and implementation of TBLT in EFL settings is both on the rise and interestingly diverse, not least because it must respond to the distinct contexts, constraints, and possibilities of foreign language learning. The book will be of interest to SLA researchers and students in applied linguistics and TESOL. It will also be of value to course designers and language teachers who come from a broad range of formal and informal educational settings encompassing a wide range of ages and types of language learners

Text, Context and the Johannine Community David A. Lamb, 2014-04-24 Text Context and the Johannine Community adopts a new approach to the social context of the Johannine writings by drawing on modern sociolinguistic theory Sociolinguistics emphasizes language as a social phenomenon which can be analysed with reference not only to its broad context of culture but also through the use of register analysis to its narrower context of situation The Johannine writings have increasingly been seen as the product of a distinct Johannine Community depicted by some scholars as a sectarian group opposed both to wider Jewish society and to other Christian groups This model has largely been constructed on historical critical grounds yet given our lack of reliable external information about the origin of the Johannine writings a more fruitful approach may be to examine their lexico grammatical and discourse features to determine what these imply about interpersonal relationships This study compares selected narrative asides from the Gospel of John with a passage section from 1 John and with the two shorter Johannine Epistles It concludes that register analysis of these texts does not support the idea of a close knit sectarian group
