Language Society And The Elderly Discourse Identity And Aging:

Language, Society and the Elderly Nikolas Coupland, Justine Coupland, Howard Giles, 1991 Language Society and the Elderly is the first concerted attempt to give a social account of language and interaction in later life The book gives a detailed critique of the cognitive bias of existing studies of elderly people s language In its place the authors propose a socially based approach which explains how older people s life circumstances concerns goals and beliefs influence their styles of interaction But social stereotypes of old age and a generally ageist social climate limit the roles available to elderly people In detailed analyses of talk between elderly people and younger adults the authors show how age and health identifies are negotiated They look particularly at sequences of troubles telling and moments of painful self disclosure by elderly people examining how even supportive talk to the elderly can threaten identity and reinforce social divisions Language Society and the Elderly opens up an entirely new field for sociolinguistics It also shows how studies of language and interaction can contribute to theory in social gerontology and to policy and practice in medical and caring contexts

Language and Communication in Old Age Heidi Ehernberger Hamilton, 2013-07-04 This volume explores physiological and psychological changes in speech among the elderly drawing on 20 years of research on the physical and emotional aspects of language and communication Index

Language, Culture and the Dynamics of Age Anna Duszak, Urszula Okulska, 2011 The book explores the role of age in communication under consideration of various age groups the elderly middle aged teenagers children genres cultures and languages The social skewing of the contributions explains the book s focus on discourse mediated social identities with age implicated as a viable controller of how social action is strategically deployed for alignment and alienation accommodation and divergence The studies in the book show the particular importance of the discursive construction of age in the face of new challenges of globalization increased human mobility and rising intergenerational conflicts

Language, Society and Power Annabelle

Mooney, Jean Stilwell Peccei, Suzanne LaBelle, Berit Engøy Henriksen, Eva Eppler, Anthea Irwin, Pia Pichler, Siân Preece, Satori Soden, 2010-12-14 Language Society and Power is the essential introductory text for students studying language in a variety of social contexts. This book examines the ways in which language functions, how it influences thought and how it varies according to age, ethnicity, class, and gender. It seeks to answer such questions as: How can a language reflect the status of children and older people? Do men and women talk differently? How can our use of language mark our ethnic identity? It also looks at language use in politics and the media and investigates how language affects and constructs our identities, exploring notions of correctness and attitudes towards language use. This third edition of this bestselling book has been completely revised to include recent developments in theory and research and offers the following features: a range of new and engaging international examples drawn from everyday life, beauty advertisements, conversation transcripts, newspaper headlines, reporting on asylum seekers, language-themed cartoons, and excerpts from the television programme South Park and satirical news website The Onion; new activities designed to give students a real understanding of the topic; a new chapter covering Student Projects giving readers suggestions on how to further explore the topics covered in the book; updated and expanded further reading sections for each chapter; and a glossary. While it can be used as a stand-alone text, this edition of Language Society and Power has also been fully cross-referenced with the new companion title The Language Society and Power Reader. Together, these books provide the complete resource for students of English language and linguistics, media communication, cultural studies, sociology, and psychology.

Aging, Communication, and Health Mary Lee Hummert, Jon F. Nussbaum, 2001-03 This collection focuses on communication as a research, education, policy, and practice issue for the development and evaluation of health services for older adults. It is intended for those studying communication, geriatrics, life span development, and cognitive psychology.

The Routledge Handbook of Language and Politics Ruth Wodak, Bernhard Forchtner, 2017-08-23 The Routledge Handbook of Language and Politics provides a comprehensive overview of this important and dynamic area of study and research. Language is indispensable to initiating, justifying, legitimatising, and coordinating action, as well as negotiating conflict, and as such is intrinsically linked to the area of politics. With 45 chapters written by leading scholars from around the world, this Handbook covers the following key areas: Overviews of the most influential theoretical approaches including Bourdieu, Foucault, Habermas, and Marx; Methodological approaches to language and politics covering, among others, content analysis, conversation analysis, multimodal analysis, and narrative analysis; Genres of political action from speech making and policy to national anthems and billboards; Cutting edge case studies about hot topic socio-political phenomena such as ageing, social class, gendered politics, and populism. The Routledge Handbook of Language and Politics is a vibrant survey of this key field and is essential reading for advanced students and researchers studying language and politics.

Handbook of Communication and Aging Research Jon F. Nussbaum, Justine Coupland, 2004-04-12 This second edition of the Handbook of Communication and Aging Research captures the ever-changing and expanding domain of aging research Since it was first recognized that there is more to social aging than demography gerontology has needed a communication perspective Like the first edition this handbook sets out to demonstrate that aging is not only an individual process but an interactive one The study of communication can lead to an understanding of what it means to grow old We may age physiologically and chronologically but our social aging how we behave as social actors toward others and even how we align ourselves with or come to understand the signs of difference or change as we age are phenomena achieved primarily through communication experiences Synthesizing the vast amount of research that has been published on communication and aging in numerous international outlets over the last three decades the book s contributors include scholars from North America and the United Kingdom who are active researchers in the perspectives covered in their particular chapter Many of the chapters work to deny earlier images of aging as involving normative decrement to provide a picture of aging as a process of development involving positive choices and providing new opportunities A recurring theme in many chapters is that of the heterogeneity of the group of people who are variously categorized as older aged elderly or over 65 The contributors review the literature analytically in a way that reveals not only current theoretical and methodological approaches to communication and aging research but also sets the future agenda This handbook will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in gerontology developmental psychology and communication and in this updated edition will continue to play a key role in the study of communication and aging

Communication for Successful Aging Howard Giles, Jessica Gasiorek, Shardé M. Davis, Jane Giles, 2021-11-22 This essential volume explores the vital role of communication in the aging process and how this varies for different social groups and cultural communities It reveals how communication can empower people in the process of aging and that how we communicate about age is critically important to and is at the heart of aging successfully Giles et al confront the uncertainty and negativity surrounding aging a process with which we all have to cope by expertly placing communication at the core of the process They address the need to avoid negative language discuss the lifespan as an evolving adventure and introduce a new theory of successful aging the communication ecology model of successful aging CEMSA They explore the research on key topics including age stereotypes age identities and messages of ageism the role of culture gender ethnicity and being a member of marginalized groups the ingredients of intergenerational communication depiction of aging and youth in the media and how and why talk about death and dying can be instrumental in promoting control over life s demands Communication for Successful Aging is essential reading for graduate students of psychology human development gerontology and communication scholars in the social sciences and all of us concerned with this complex academic and highly personal topic

Society and Language Use Jürgen Jaspers, Jan-Ola Östman, Jef Verschueren, 2010-09-10 The ten volumes of Handbook of Pragmatics Highlights focus on the most salient topics in the field of pragmatics thus dividing its wide interdisciplinary spectrum in a transparent and manageable way While the other volumes select specific philosophical cognitive grammatical cultural variational interactional or discursive angles this seventh volume underlines the mutually constitutive relation between society and language use. It highlights a number of the most prominent approaches of this relation and it draws attention to a selected number of topics that the study of language in its social context has characteristically brought to bear. Despite their theoretical and methodological differences each of the chapters in this book assumes that it is necessary to look at society and language use as interdependent phenomena and that by attending to microscopic linguistic phenomena one is also keeping a finger on the pulse of broader macroscopic social tendencies that at the same time facilitate and constrain language use. The introduction provides a sketch of the intellectual antecedents of the volume's two mother disciplines viz linguistics and social theory before pointing at recent common ground in the rising attention for discourse and what has come to be called late modernity.

Ageing Identities and Women's Everyday Talk in a Hair Salon Rachel Heinrichsmeier, 2020-01-14 The ageing of the world's populations particularly in Western developed countries is a well documented phenomenon and despite many positive images of later life in the media and public discourse later life is frequently depicted as a time of inevitable physical and cognitive decline. Against this background Heinrichsmeier presents the results of her two year sociolinguistic study examining how a group of older women of different ages negotiated their way through their own and others' expectations of ageing and constructed different kinds of older and other identities for themselves. Through vivid and nuanced analysis of their chat and practices in a small village hair salon Heinrichsmeier reveals these women's subtle and skilful manipulation of stereotypes of ageing and the impact of the evolving talk on their identity constructions. Her study which provides numerous short extracts of talk in both the hair salon and interview along with more detailed case studies highlights the importance of such apparently trivial sites for both studying older people's identity work and as loci for positive identity constructions and well being in later life. This book will be of particular interest to graduate students and scholars working in sociolinguistics, discourse analysis, conversation analysis and gerontological studies as well as those interested in approaches integrating ethnography and language.

Aging in a Second Language Steven L. Arxer, Maria del Puy Ciriza, Marco Shappeck, 2017-05-30 This unique account of English language acquisition by Latino elders shines intimate light on the increasingly complex concerns of aging immigrant minority populations. Rich qualitative findings detail sociocultural barriers to and social and emotive factors that promote second language acquisition in older age. The book's case study highlights diverse cognitive and social processes as elders establish a sense of self as learners and as part of a learning community and a sense of place as newcomers navigating a challenging environment. And first person comments from the group members deftly illustrate the intricacies of being an immigrant in a rapidly changing America as well as the myriad intersections of race, ethnicity, gender, culture and country that shape immigrant life. Included in the coverage: Minority aging in an immigrant context, Late life second language acquisition, cognitive and psycholinguistic changes, challenges and opportunities, Building emotions for self identity and learning, Practicing safe language socialization in private and public spaces, Language resocialization and gender allies, Aging second

Beyond Nostalgia Ruth E. Ray, 2000 For three years Ruth E Ray visited and participated in eight writing groups at six senior centers in inner city and suburban Detroit looking for ways in which the elderly fashion their memories through personal narrative Her innovative book involves the reader in the construction of life stories as a richly rewarding and highly social process that often reveals the types of relationships that dominate the lives of group members the majority of whom are women Because Ray wrote and responded herself and shares her anxiety and triumph in presenting her writing to women old enough to be her mother some of a different race and class Beyond Nostalgia is an excellent primer for professionals working with diverse groups in a variety of settings It is also an important contribution to the emerging field of feminist gerontology Ray s book demonstrates its own thesis that the presentation and negotiation of life stories in writing groups initiates change and personal growth among older people Drawing on personal observations the give and take of meeting conversations lengthy interviews and the life stories themselves Ray tells a story of adult development through personal narrative She recreates the group process through which age peers begin to articulate what life means both individually and collectively The writing groups of older adults that Ray studied challenged their members to consider not just cultural influences but generational effects on the evolving content and structure of their life stories Age Ray argues has been largely ignored by feminists and she makes a strong case for the need to learn how women make meaning of their lives across the life span As an important document and analysis of that process Beyond Nostalgia should appeal to academics and practitioners in women s studies composition studies gerontology developmental psychology sociology social work and linguistics and to anyone who works with older people
