Selected and condensed portions of five reports prepared by Project SPAN Social Studies Priorities Practices and Needs are presented The purpose of Project SPAN was to describe and assess the current and recent state of social studies social science education designate desired states to which social studies might or should aspire and shape recommendations as to how those desired states might be approached There are four sections The first section drawn mostly from the conclusion of an extensive report written by Hazel Whitman Hertzberg as historical background for the project describes efforts to reform social studies during the period 1880 1980 The second section focuses on the current state of five critical elements in social studies programming and instruction rationales goals and objectives curriculum patterns curriculum materials teachers and instructional practices The third section The Future of Social Studies describes in some detail the six major problems that SPAN staff and consultants believe need to be faced in the 1980s the desired states toward which social studies educators might strive and recommendations flowing from a comparison of current states and the problems associated with the desired states The fourth section describes one of the several major alternatives to the current pattern of social studies considered by the SPAN staff and consultants The alternative is a social roles approach to social studies Author RM      Paperbound Books in Print ,1982      A Guide for Teaching Social Studies Mark Fravel, Robert H. MacDonald (Ed. D.), 1991      Contemporary Biology Florence L. Juillerat, Melanie D. Recent developments in the conceptualization of externalizing spectrum disorders including attention deficit hyperactivity disorder conduct disorder antisocial personality disorder and substance use disorders suggest common genetic and neural substrates Despite this neither shared vulnerabilities nor their implications for developmental models of externalizing conduct are captured by prevailing nosologic and diagnostic systems such as the DSM 5 The Oxford Handbook of Externalizing Spectrum Disorders is the first book of its kind to capture the developmental psychopathology of externalizing spectrum disorders by examining causal factors across levels of analysis and developmental epochs while departing from the categorical perspective World renowned experts on externalizing psychopathology demonstrate how shared genetic and neural vulnerabilities predispose to trait impulsivity a highly heritable personality construct that is often shaped by adverse environments into increasingly intractable forms of externalizing conduct across development Consistent with contemporary models of almost all forms of psychopathology the Handbook emphasizes the importance of neurobiological vulnerability and environmental risk interactions in the expression of externalizing behavior across the lifespan The volume concludes with an integrative ontogenic process model of externalizing psychopathology in which diverse equifinal and multifinal pathways to disorder are specified El-Hi textbooks in print
