

- Global citizens are the glue which binds local communities together in an increasingly globalized world. In van der Meer's words, "global citizens might be a new type of people that can travel within these various boundaries and somehow still make sense of the world."

Salient features of Global Citizenship

1. Global citizenship as a choice and a way of thinking

- People come to consider themselves as global citizen through various formative life experiences and have different interpretations of what it means to them. For many, the practice of global citizenship is primarily exercised at home through engagement in global issues or with different cultures in a local setting. For others, global citizenship means firsthand experience with different countries, people and cultures.

Chi-Kin Lee,Kerry J Kennedy,2024-06-28 This Handbook provides a comprehensive look at the educational scope of life and values that characterize 21st century Asia as well as those values shared across cultures. Some values are deeply resonant with the region's past while others reflect modernity and the new contexts in which Asian societies find themselves. Exploring these values of different types and the way they are constructed in Eastern and Western contexts, the contributors delve into the diversity of religious, moral, and social education to promote greater understanding across cultures. While a range of values is identified here, there is no single set of values that can be applied to all people in all contexts. The time has long gone even for single societies when values can be imposed. Yet this Handbook emphasizes both the extent and importance of values to individuals and their societies; how they respond to these values may provide the key to better and more caring societies and to better lives for all. Academics and teachers will find this Handbook resourceful because it raises important theoretical issues related to social values and their formation in distinctive contexts and provides novel insights into the diverse educational landscape in Asia. Policymakers and educators will also find this text helpful in learning to think about new ways to improve the quality of people's lives.

Globalisation, Ideology and Politics of Education Reforms Joseph Zajda, 2015-10-09. This 14th volume in the 24 volume book series sets out to explore the interrelationship between ideology, the state, and education reforms, placing it in a global context. It examines some of the major education reforms and policy issues in a global culture, particularly in the light of recent shifts in accountability, quality, and standards-driven education and policy research. By doing so, it provides a comprehensive picture of the intersecting and diverse discourses of globalisation and policy-driven reforms in education. The book draws upon recent studies in the areas of globalisation, equality, and the role of the state. It explores conceptual frameworks and methodological approaches applicable in the research covering the state, globalisation, and education reforms. It critiques the neo-liberal ideological imperatives of current education and policy reforms and illustrates the way that shifts in the relationship between the state and education policy affect current trends in education reforms and schooling globally. Individual chapters critically assess the dominant discourses and debates on education and policy reforms. Using diverse comparative education paradigms from critical theory to historical comparative research, the chapters focus on globalisation, ideology, and democracy and examine both the reasons and outcomes of education reforms and policy change. They provide an informed critique of models of accountability, quality, and standards-driven education reforms that are informed by Western dominant ideologies and social values. The book also draws upon recent studies in the areas of equity, cultural capital, and dominant ideologies in education.
