Wills and Will-making in Anglo-Saxon England Linda Tollerton, 2011 A study of the implications and practices of wills and will making in Anglo Saxon society and of the varieties of inheritance strategies and commemorative arrangements adopted A remarkable series of Anglo Saxon wills have survived spanning the period from the beginning of the ninth century to the years immediately following the Norman Conquest Written in Old English they reflect the significance of the vernacular not only in royal administration during this period but in the recording of a range of individual transactions They show wealthy laymen and women and clerics from kings and bishops to those of thegny status disposing of land and chattels and recognising ties of kinship friendship lordship and service through their bequests and whilst land is of prime importance the mention in some wills of such valuable items as tableware furnishings clothing jewellery and weapons provides an insight into lifestyle at the time Despite their importance no study has hitherto been specifically devoted to Anglo Saxon wills in their social and historical context a gap which this book aims to fill While the wills themselves can be vague and allusive by establishing patterns of bequeathing and by drawing on other resources the author sheds light on the factors which influenced men and women in making appropriate provision for their property Linda Tollerton gained her PhD from the University of York

Beyond the Burghal Hidage John Baker, Stuart Brookes, 2013-03-27 As the title suggests Beyond the Burghal Hidage takes the study of Anglo Saxon civil defence away from traditional historical and archaeological fields and uses a groundbreaking interdisciplinary approach to examine warfare and public responses to organised violence through their impact on the landscape By bringing together the evidence from a wide range of archaeological onomastic and historical sources the authors are able to reconstruct complex strategic and military landscapes and to show how important detailed knowledge of early medieval infrastructure and communications is to our understanding of Anglo Saxon preparedness for war and to the situating of major defensive works within their wider strategic context The result is a significant and far reaching re evaluation of the evolution of late Anglo Saxon defensive arrangements Winner of the 2013 Verbruggen prize given annually by De Re Militari society for the best book on medieval military history Coinage and History in the North Sea World,

Williams, 2011-11-03 Ann Williams important new book discusses the dynamics of English aristocratic society in a way that has not been explored before She investigates the rewards and obligations of status including birth wealth the importance of public and royal service and the need to participate in local affairs especially legal and administrative business This period saw the birth of a lesser aristocracy the ancestors of the English gentry the power house of society and politics in the late medieval and early modern periods Going on to examine the obligations and rewards of lordship and the relations between lords and their men Williams illustrates how status was displayed and covers the importance of the manorial house which was at once a home an estate centre and a symbol of authority and the insignia of rank in weaponry clothing and personal adornment The growing gap between the highest rank of society and the lowest fuelled by underlying economic developments is also covered In conclusion she considers some of the occupations which symbolized and perpetuated lordly power Though the upper levels of aristocratic society were swept away by the Norman settlement the lesser aristocracy had a much higher rate of survival and it was this group who began the manorialization of English society familiar from the late medieval period

The Glass Vessels of Anglo-Saxon England Rose Broadley, 2019-12-27 This volume combines a comprehensive exploration of all vessel glass from middle and late Anglo Saxon England and a review of the early glass with detailed interpretation of its meaning and place in Anglo Saxon society Analysis of a comprehensive dataset of all known Anglo Saxon vessel glass of middle Anglo Saxon date as a group has enabled the first quantification of form colour and decoration and provided the structure for a new typological chronological and geographical framework The quantification and comparison of the vessel glass fragments and their attributes and the mapping of the national distribution of these characteristics forms colours and decoration types both represent significant developments and create rich opportunities for the future The geographical scope is dictated by the glass fragments which are from settlements located along the coast from Northumbria to Kent and along the south coast to Southampton Seven case studies of intra site glass distribution reveal that the anticipated pattern of peripheral disposal alongside dining waste is widespread although exceptions exist at the monastic sites at Lyminge Kent and Jarrow Tyne and Wear Overall the research themes addressed are the glass corpus and its typology glass vessels in Anglo Saxon society and glass vessels as an economic indicator of trade and exchange Analysis reveals new understandings of both the glass itself and the role of glass vessels in the social and economic mechanisms of early medieval England There is currently no comprehensive work examining early medieval vessel glass particularly the post sixth century fragmentary material from settlements and my monograph will fill that gap The space is particularly noticeable when considering books on archaeological glass from England the early medieval period is the only one with no reference volume no recent thorough and accessible source of information The British Museum published a monograph entitled Catalogue of Anglo Saxon Glass in the British Museum in 2008 but as the title suggests it is a catalogue at heart and of a collection of fifth and sixth century grave goods in a single museum Chronologically a volume on the subject would fill the space between various books on Roman glass from Britain and Medieval glass vessels found in England c AD 1200 1500 by Rachel Tyson This book on early medieval vessel glass and the contexts from which it came will also make a significant contribution to early medieval settlement studies and the archaeology of trade in this period both are growth areas of scholarship and interest and vessel glass provides a new tool to address key debates in the field

Writing the Lives of People and Things, AD 500-1700 Robert F.W. Smith, Gemma L. Watson, 2017-05-15 Historical biography has a mixed reputation at its best it can reveal much not only about an individual but the wider context of their life and society at worst it can result in a narrowly focused work of hagiography or condemnation Yet in spite of its sometimes inferior status amongst academics biography has remained a popular genre and in recent years has developed into new and intriguing areas As the essays in this volume reveal scholars from an array of different disciplines have embraced what biography can offer them expanding the remit of biography from people to things tracing the life of their chosen object from creation to use to disposal to rediscovery The increasing concern with the physicality of manuscripts and books has also meant an awareness of and interest in the lives of these forms of material culture Historians have also become increasingly interested in groups of individuals resulting in prosopographical studies A book on the diversity of biography is therefore very timely exploring the multi disciplinary application of historical biography in the period 500 1700 It presents fourteen case studies offering new approaches to historical biography written by early career researchers from backgrounds in archaeology English art architectural history and history demonstrating different approaches and techniques Overall the collection is a strong and united statement by a group of early career researchers who insist on the vitality of biography as a central concern of historians across the disciplines of the humanities Contributors believe that the life is a fundamental medium of study for the medieval and early modern periods and thus bolsters the move back towards biography as a primary tool of medieval and early modern scholars as well as a tool for future research for humanities scholars interested in biography
