Current perspectives on the mechanisms of auditory hallucinations in clinical and non-clinical populations Johanna C. Badcock, Frank Larøi, Paul Allen, Kelly M. Diederer, 2014-03-07 There has been a recent surge of interest in auditory hallucinations AH in schizophrenia compared to those experienced by non clinical i e healthy individuals This interest stems in no small part from a keen awareness of the fact that progress in developing more effective treatments for AH in psychosis has been seriously hampered by our limited understanding of the cognitive and biological mechanisms involved The prevailing notion that AH in clinical and non clinical populations share the same features and underlying mechanisms the continuum hypothesis has been seriously challenged by a growing list of differences as well as similarities between these groups At the phenomenological level this is exemplified in the highly negative content of AH in patients and the markedly earlier age of onset of AH in non patients Similarly several recent studies point to significant differences in cognition language lateralization and possibly dopamine function between these groups These findings have important implications for the design of future studies and raise considerable doubt about the adequacy of modelling the functional mechanisms of clinical AH on the basis of non clinical populations In short the time seems ripe to re evaluate the continuum hypothesis and provide a forum to present alternative perspectives on the functional pathways leading to AH in clinical and non clinical groups Such a forum is also timely in view of the renewed interest in AH in other non schizophrenic clinical groups again examining similarities and differences between such groups Preliminary studies for instance have shown that AH in certain clinical populations e g bipolar disorder borderline personality disorder dissociative disorder share similar phenomenological features with AH in schizophrenia However the implications of such findings are not fully understood and studies have not adequately examined potential differences between AH in these groups The goal of this Frontiers Research Topic therefore is take the opportunity to bring together research exploring differences and similarities in mechanisms of AH in clinical and non clinical groups and to stimulate the development of new explanatory models which explicitly link the phenomenological characteristics of AH with underlying mechanisms

Maina,2023-09-13 Birds have and continue to fascinate scientists and the general public While the avian respiratory system has unremittingly been investigated for nearly five centuries important aspects on its biology remain cryptic and controversial In this book resolving some of the contentious issues developmental structural and functional aspects of the avian lung air sac system are particularized it endeavors to answer following fundamental questions on the biology of birds how when and why did birds become what they are Flight is a unique form of locomotion It considerably shaped the form and the essence of birds as animals An exceptionally efficient respiratory system capacitated birds to procure the exceptionally large quantities of oxygen needed for powered active flight Among the extant air breathing vertebrates comprising 11 000 species birds are the most species rich numerically abundant and extensively distributed animal taxon After realizing volancy they easily overcame geographical obstacles and extensively dispersed into various ecological niches where they underwent remarkable adaptive radiation While the external morphology of birds is inconceivably uniform for such a considerably speciose taxon contingent on among other attributes lifestyle habitat and phylogenetic level of development have foremost determined the novelties that are displayed by diverse species of birds Here critical synthesizes of the most recent findings with the historical ones evolution and behavior and development structure and function of the exceptionally elaborate respiratory system of birds are detailed The prominence of modern birds as a taxon in the Animal Kingdom is underscored The book should appeal to researchers who are interested in evolutionary processes and how adaptive specializations correlate with biological physiognomies and exigencies comparative biologists who focus on how various animals have solved respiratory pressures people who study respiration in birds and other animals and ornithologists who love and enjoy birds for what they are profoundly interesting animals Index of NLM Serial Titles National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1981 A keyword listing of serial titles currently received by the National Library of Medicine Current Perspectives on Insulin-like Growth Factor Binding Protein (IGFBP) Research Andreas Hoeflich,John Pintar,Briony Forbes,2019-02-06 The family of IGFBPs has been developed by the duplication of genes and genomes and contributes to genetic and functional diversity Due to the different protein domains present in the molecule IGFBPs can be seen as mediators of tissue specific IGF functions However IGFBPs also have IGF independent functions both inside and outside the cell These diverse genetic molecular and functional aspects of IGFBPs are discussed within this Research Topic Accumulating data provide evidence for the regulation of IGFBP functions by proteases which may acutely regulate bioactivity of the IGFs However during proteolytic degradation IGFBP fragments with novel functions can also be formed and are located both intra and extracellularly Distinct IGFBP fragments can even be found in the perinuclear compartment or within the nucleus where they can impact on gene expression Several contributions presented in the current Research Topic particularly stress the relevance of structural aspects in IGFBP research The current lack of comprehensive structural information is dramatically limiting the biomarker potential of particular IGFBPs Finally the Research Topic also provides novel functions of the IGFBP family from model organisms farm animals and humans Thereby the biomarker potential not only relates to normal and malignant growth but also to metabolism and animal welfare One important aim of the Research Topic is to encourage next generation IGFBP research reflecting subject individual conditional and hormonal parameters but also structural aspects of the IGFBPs
