White, 2016-03-03 This book reconsiders the nature and formation of Asia's economic order during the 1930s and 1950s in light of the new historiographical developments in Britain and Japan Recently several Japanese economic historians have offered a new perspective on Asian history arguing that economic growth was fuelled by the phenomenon of intra Asian trade which began to grow rapidly around the turn of the 19th 20th centuries On the other side British imperial historians P J Cain and A G Hopkins have presented their own interpretation of gentlemanly capitalism in which they emphasize the leading role of the service sector rather than that of British industry in assessing the nature of the British presence overseas In order to assess and test these new perspectives this volume addresses three key issues The first is to reconsider the metropolitan peripheral relationship in Asia focusing particularly on the role of the sterling area and its implications for Asian economic development The second is to examine the formation of inter regional trade relations within Asia in the 1930s and their revival and transformation in the 1950s The final issue is the comparison of the international order of Asia of the 1930s with the 1950s and the degree to which the Second World War represented a break point in Asia's economic development Dealing with issues of trade economy nationalism and imperialism this book provides fresh insights into the development of Asia during the mid twentieth century Drawing on the latest scholarship it will prove invaluable to all who wish to better understand the position of countries such as Japan China India Singapore Malaysia and Korea within the wider international order

Walker's Monthly Walker's Galleries (London, England), 1928. Shanghai on the Metro Michael B. Miller, 2023-04-28. Secret agents gun runners White Russians and con men they all play a part in Michael B Miller's strikingly original study of interwar France. Based on extensive research in security files and a mass of printed sources Shanghai on the Metro shows how a distinctive milieu of spies and spy literature emerged between the two world wars reflecting the atmosphere and concerns of these years. Miller argues that French fascination with intrigue between the wars reveals a far more assured and playful national mood than historians have hitherto discerned in the final decades of the Third Republic. But the larger history set in motion by World War I and the subsequent reading of French history into global history are the true subjects of this work. Reconstituting through his own narratives the histories of interwar travel and adventure and the willful turning of contemporary affairs into a source of romance Miller recovers the ambience and special qualities of the age that produced its intrigues and its tales of spies.
