Letters From Portugal:

Letters from Portugal and Spain: written during the march of the British troops under Sir John Moore Sir Robert Ker Porter, 2013-02-25 Sir Robert Ker Porter's life was as varied and dramatic as his paintings. A noted author, artist, soldier, and diplomat, he was born into a military family in Durham. After developing a reputation for his painting, he travelled extensively in Northern Europe before accepting commissions for historical paintings from the Tsar of Russia in 1805. He travelled on to Sweden where he met Sir John Moore. Sir John found him congenial company and invited him to accompany the expedition to Spain that he was to lead. Sir John's campaign in 1808 was to be brief, outnumbered by his French opponents by massive odds, and with the weight of British and Spanish hopes encumbering him, he opted for a bold thrust at an isolated French corps under Soult. The British troops were discovered on their approach, and despite a number of successful small engagements, the imminent danger of the other French corps rushing to surround the small body of British men was obvious to Moore. His only choice was to retreat through some of the roughest country in Europe, through the crags, ravines, and gorges of Northern Spain, fending off successive French attacks, dealing with drunken, starving soldiers, and rapidly diminishing supplies. Sir John drove his men on to Coruña where he fought a sterling defensive battle to ensure that his men could be carried off by the Royal Navy. Sir Robert Porter's work illustrates the hardships and difficulties men and officers of the British force with all of the eye for detail that an artist can summon. His letters are one of the prime sources for the campaign of 1808. Author: Porter, Robert Ker, Sir, 1777-1842. Text taken whole and complete from the edition published in London: Longman, Hurst, Rees, and Orme, 1809. Original Page Count: xiv, 320 p. Illustrations: 7 engravings. Letters from Portugal, on the Late and Present State of that Kingdom John Blankett, 1777 Letters from Portugal, Spain, Italy and Germany, in the Years 1759, 1760, and 1761 Christopher Hervey, 1785 Letters from Portugal, Spain, & France: written during the campaigns of 1812, 1813, & 1814 S. D. Broughton, 2013-02-18 After studying at St George's Hospital, the author was appointed assistant surgeon of the 2nd Life Guards and placed in charge of the service squadrons that were to be posted to the Peninsula in 1812. His life in the army was to be much different from the sinecure of London life, and his account book presents a very personal view of his campaigning experiences on the march from Lisbon to Boulogne during the Peninsular War against Napoleonic France. The letters contain fascinating details not often found in memoirs concerning this campaign, including descriptions of the local diet and portrayals of contemporary society, festivals, and customs, as well as recording the particulars of the military actions in which the author was engaged. From the balls and dinner parties in Lisbon via the discomforts of campaign to the splendours of Paris, this is an engaging and elegant narrative of a tumultuous period in European history. Author: S. D. Broughton, 1787-1837. Text taken whole and complete from the edition published in London: Longman, Hurst, Rees, Orme, and Brown, 1815. Original Page Count: vi and 412 pages.
