Letters Of Medieval Jewish Traders:

Letters of Medieval Jewish Traders S. D. Goitein, 2015-03-08 Modern international business has its origins in the overseas trade of the Middle Ages. Of the various communities active in trade in the Islamic countries at that time, records of only the Jewish community survive. Thousands of documents were preserved in the Cairo Geniza, a lumber room attached to the synagogue where discarded writings containing the name of God were deposited to preserve them from desecration. From them Professor Goitein has selected eighty letters that provide a fascinating glimpse into the world of the medieval Jewish traders. As the letters vividly illustrate, international trade depended on a network of personal relationships and mutual confidence. Organization was largely through partnerships based usually on ties of common religion but often reinforced by family connections. Sometimes the partners of Jews were Christians or Muslims, and the letters show these merchants working together in greater harmony than has been thought even in partnerships that lasted through generations. The services rendered to a friend or partner and those expected from him were great, and the book opens with an angry letter from a merchant who believed he had been let down by his friend. The life of a trader was full of dangers, as the letter describing a shipwreck illustrates, and put great strain on personal relationships. One of the most moving letters is that written to his wife by a man absent in India for many years while endeavoring to make the family's fortunes. Although never ceasing to love her and longing to be with her, he offers to divorce her if she feels she can wait for him no longer. A decisive event in the life of the great Jewish philosopher Moses Maimonides was the death of his brother David who drowned in the Indian Ocean. Printed here is the last letter David wrote describing his safe crossing of the desert and announcing his intention to go on to India against his brother's instructions. Professor Goitein has provided an introduction and notes for each letter and a general introduction describing the social and spiritual world of the writers, the organization of overseas trade in the Middle Ages, and the goods traded. The letters demonstrate that although it reached from Spain to India, the traders' world was a cohesive one through which these men could move freely and always feel at home. Cohen,2013-11-28 They are voices that have been silent for centuries those of captives and refugees widows and orphans the blind and infirm and the underclass of the working poor Now for the first time the voices of the poor in the Middle Ages come to life in this moving book by historian Mark Cohen A companion to Cohen s other volume Poverty and Charity in the Jewish Community of Medieval Egypt the book presents more than ninety letters alms lists donor lists and other related documents from the Geniza a hidden chamber for discarded papers situated inside a wall in a Cairo synagogue Cohen has translated these documents providing the historical context for each In the past most of what we knew of the poor in the Middle Ages came from records and observations compiled by their literate social superiors from tax collectors to the inquisitor s clerk from criminal judges to the benefactors of the helpless from makers of Islamic waqf deeds to authors of Arabic chronicles and in Judaism from Rabbis who wrote responsa to compilers of Jewish law codes What distinguishes this book is that it contains the voices of the poor themselves found in documents heretofore largely ignored Because an ancient custom in Judaism prohibited the destruction of pages of sacred writing the documents were preserved largely unharmed for as many as nine centuries The Voice of the Poor in the Middle Ages provides access to the attitudes and philanthropic activities of the charitable alongside the dramatic writings of the poor themselves whether penned in their own hands or dictated to a scribe or family member The book also allows a rare glimpse into the women of the Middle Ages as well as into the world of private charity an area long elusive to the medieval historian For researchers and students alike this book will be an invaluable social history source for years to come Islam in West Africa Nehemia Levtzion,2017-01-12 First published in 1994 this volume brings together essays from the celebrated scholar of African history Nehemia Levtzion The articles cover a wide range of themes including Islamization Islam in politics Islamic revolutions and the work of the historian in studying this field This collection is a rich source of supplementary material to Professor Levtzion s major publications on Islam in West Africa This book will be of key interest to those studying Islamic and West African history Trade and Traders in Muslim Spain Olivia Remie Constable,1996-07-13 This volume surveys Iberian international trade from the tenth to the fifteenth century with particular emphasis on commerce in the Muslim period and on changes brought by Christian conquest of much of Muslim Spain in the thirteenth century From the tenth to the thirteenth century markets in the Iberian peninsula were closely linked to markets elsewhere in the Islamic world and a strong east west Mediterranean trading network linked Cairo with Cordoba Following routes along the North African coast Muslim and Jewish merchants carried eastern goods to Muslim Spain returning eastwards with Andalusí exports. Situated at the edge of the Islamic west, Andalusí markets were also emporia for the transfer of commodities between the Islamic world and Christian Europe. After the thirteenth century, the Iberian peninsula became part of the European economic sphere; its commercial realignment aided by the opening of the Straits of Gibraltar to Christian trade and by the contemporary demise of the Muslim trading network in the Mediterranean.

The Sheikh's House at Quseir al-Qadim Katherine Strange Burke, 2021-04-30 This study of a thirteenth-century dwelling on Egypt's Red Sea Coast draws on multiple lines of evidence, including texts excavated at the site, to reconstruct a history of the structure and the people who dwelt within. The inhabitants participated in Nile Valley Red Sea Indian Ocean trade, transported pilgrims, sent grain to Mecca and Medina, and wrote sermons and amulets for the local faithful. These activities are detailed in the documents and fleshed out in the botanical, faunal, artifact, and stratigraphic evidence from the University of Chicago's excavations, 1978-82. This compound eventually consisted of two houses and a row of storerooms and became the center of mercantile activity at Quseir al-Qadim. Over time, as the number of named individuals who received shipping notes addressed to the warehouse of Ab Mufarij increased, living rooms and storerooms were added to accommodate this expansion of commerce. While most merchants were dealing in textiles, dates, and grains, additional commodities traded included perfumes, gemstone, decorated textiles, resist-dyed textiles, and porcelains. Specialist studies by Steven Goodman on the avian faunal remains and Wilma Wetterstrom on the macrobotanical finds reveal that the compound's occupants enjoyed a diet of chicken and Nile Valley produce such as grapes and watermelon, and they were supplemented by high-priced imports: nuts and fruits from around the Mediterranean, along with medicinal plants from as far away as India, indicate the wealth and status of this family of merchants. The evidence from this small portion of Quseir al-Qadim yields a rich local story that is a microcosm of Nile Valley Red Sea Indian Ocean trade under the last Ayyubid sultans of Egypt.
