rich in humor and irony and women's writing from that period is perhaps even less likely to be seen as possessing those qualities. Yet since comedy is bound to societal norms and humor and irony are recognized weapons of the weak against authority, what this innovative study reveals should not be surprising: women writers found much to laugh at in a bourgeois age when social constraints particularly on women were tight. Helen Chambers analyzes prose fiction by leading female writers of the day who prominently employ humor and irony. Arguing that humor and irony involve cognitive and rational processes, she highlights the inadequacy of binary theories of gender that classify the female as emotional and the male as rational. Chambers focuses on nine women writers: Annette von Droste Hülshoff, Ida Hahn-Hahn, Ottilie Wildermuth, Helene Bielefeldt, Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach, Ada Christen, Clara Viebig, Isolde Kurz, and Ricarda Huch. She uncovers a rich seam of unsuspected or forgotten variety, identifies fresh avenues of approach, and suggests a range of works that merit a place on university reading lists and attention in scholarly studies. Helen Chambers is Professor of German at the University of St. Andrews, Scotland, UK.

The Waiting Water Alexander Sorenson, 2024-09-15. The Waiting Water addresses one of the most recurrent and troubling motifs in German Realist literature: death by drowning. Characters find themselves before bodies of water presented with the familiar realm above the surface and the unobservable, uncanny domain beneath it. With somber regularity, they then disappear into the depths. Alexander Sorenson explores the role that these hidden deaths in water play within a literary movement that set out precisely to reveal universal truths about human life. The poetics of submergence, he argues, revolve around two concepts fundamental to Poetic Realism: order and sacrifice. Focusing on texts by Adalbert Stifter, Gottfried Keller, Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach, and Theodor Storm, along with material from earlier and later epochs, The Waiting Water shows that the pervasive symbolism of drowning scenes in German Realism, which typically occur in zones of narrative invisibility on the social periphery, reveals the extent to which realist narrative uses the natural environment to work through deeply embedded and hidden tensions that troubled the social and moral life of the age.

Reflections of Realism Robert C. Holub, 1991. Comprises papers from the International Conference on title held Nov 1988, London, UK, on economics, planning, environmental impact, safety, control, generators. Acidic paper, no index. Holub, German U of California, Berkeley, contends that realism is not primarily a textual property but a matter of reception and reexamines 19th-century German literary realism by considering traditionally representative texts, novellas, and novels from the perspective of effects on readers.
