

Other lines through the origin

$y = ax$ and $y = -ax$ are equations for diagonal lines through the origin. The 'a' represents a number and will determine the gradient (how steep the line will be). The bigger 'a' is, the steeper the line will be.

$y = 2x$ will have a positive gradient. The equation tells us that the y-coordinate will be 2 times the x-coordinate.

$y = -\frac{1}{2}x$ will have a negative gradient. The equation tells us that the y-coordinate will be half the x-coordinate.

Straight line equations will always have 'something x, something y and a number'.

For example $3x + 3y = 12$ or $y = 3x + 2$. If it includes a power (e.g. x^2 , y^2 or $\frac{1}{x}$) it won't be a straight line. For example $y = x^2 + 3$ or $y = \frac{1}{x} + 3$.

Plotting Straight Line Graphs

Example: Draw the graph $y = 3x + 2$.

Step 1: Draw a table of values. You will use this to find the coordinates for the points on the line.

This is where the algebra comes in - you need to replace x with a number in the equation to find the value of y.

If we replace x with -3, $y = 3x + 2$ becomes $y = (3 \times -3) + 2$, which becomes $y = -9 + 2$ and finally $y = -7$.

Work your way through each column until you have completed the table of values.

x	-3	-2	-1	0	1	2	3
y	-7	-4	-1	2	5	8	11

These can then be converted into coordinates.

Remember, in a pair of coordinates, the first number can plot the points and join them to create

x	-3	-2	-1	0	1	2	3

Now that you have the coordinates, you

From elementary to high school administrators in both large and small school districts describe approaches that best suited their populations' needs. While transitioning to inclusion, administrators created structures that maximized staff talent and encouraged faculty buy-in. Challenges included calendaring collaboration time, providing inclusion and co-teaching training, properly mentoring first-year teachers, securing expert ancillary staff, retraining paraprofessionals from resource to inclusive supporting roles, procuring appropriate technology and supplemental resources, and presenting strategies to accommodate behaviorally challenged students.
