Labour Relations in the Asia-Pacific Countries Roger Blanpain, Luis Aparicio-Valdez, 2004 Important issues concerning labour and industrial relations necessarily arise as markets among the countries around the Pacific Ocean become more integrated With economic activity levels as different as that of the United States and that of Papua New Guinea and with labour forces ranging in size from that of China to that of the Sultanate of Brunei not to mention a vast spectrum of diverse cultural standards and customs this important regional grouping demands the attention of labour law specialists if trade integration is to proceed amicably and to the benefit of all In this valuable book sixteen academics and other professionals in the field present informed and insightful essays on aspects of labour and industrial relations law in ten countries Australia Canada Chile China Japan Korea Mexico New Zealand Peru and the United States as well as under the ASEAN regime Among the imperative issues these authors elucidate are the following collaboration within the firm to raise productivity the need for competitiveness among firms the importance of human relations and social responsibility the development of social security policy and reducing the risk and absorbing the benefits of integration under conditions of rapid social and industrial change These papers were originally presented in 2001 in a report by the Peruvian labour journal An lisis Laboral in response to a request by the Regional Office of the International Labour Organisation for a study of employment conditions labour relations and social security in the APEC countries as seen from a Latin American perspective It was immediately apparent that many of the papers in this report were of great value to the international labour law community and accordingly those papers are collected and reprinted here Contemporary Developments in Asian Industrial Relations Sukhan Jackson, 1994

Privatisation ASEAN Tripartite Symposium on Privatisation: Its Impact on Labour Relations, 1987 The Multi-Dimensions of Industrial Relations in the Asian Knowledge-Based Economies Sununta Siengthai, John Lawler, Chris Rowley, Hiromasa Suzuki, 2010-06-10 This collection of work by leading scholars investigates the impact of the globalization process on some selected Asian economies and societies With particular focus on the role of institutional factors such as labour unions or workers associations case studies are presented on labour management relations at the workplace that have evolved to cope with globalization The cases describe labour institutions in the society as a social force that acts as a catalyst for societal democracy and for industrial democracy at the workplace These cases provide descriptions of the changes in the management's stance and approaches towards labour unions in the selected countries as well as at the organizational level over the last three decades when much of the industrialization process has occurred in Asia A case study approach which enhances analytical and problem solving skills of students A focus on the impact of globalization process in the East and Southeast Asia which is becoming more significant in the new economy Prepared by local Asian research scholars

Globalisation, Human Rights and Labour Law in Pacific Asia Anthony Woodiwiss, 1998-04-30 Anthony Woodiwiss's pathbreaking book was the first substantive contribution to a sociology of human rights In it he takes up the question of whether so called Asian values are compatible with human rights discourse and argues against human rights issues being the major obstacle to East West co operation Dr Woodiwiss's sociological and post structuralist approach to the concept of rights and his incorporation of the transnational dimension into sociological theory enable him to demonstrate how the global human rights regime can accommodate Asian patriarchalism while Pacific Asia is itself adapting by means of what he calls enforceable benevolence His studies of Hong Kong the Philippines Malaysia and Singapore highlight similarities between Pacific Asian and Western societies and offer a positive view of the social forces obtaining in these territories

Employment Relations in the Growing Asian Economies Thomas Kochan,Russell Lansbury,Anil Verma,2005-08-17 This book analyses the role of employment relations in the context of economic development in some of the key Asian economies China Hong Kong India Malaysia the Phillipines Singapore South Korea and Taiwan In recent years these Asian economies have become increasingly more open and export driven and there is strong interest all over the world in the Asian economic miracle among practitioners and scholars alike Although much has been written on this region few books have concentrated on the human resource aspects of this growth The authors build on the basic premise that the initial success of these countries has lain in low wages and suppression of workers rights However they point out that as employment relations evolve enterprises will either pull out due to rising wages or stay and prosper by adapting to higher wages Cases are provided to illustrate both of these features The evidence in the book suggests that unless a synergy is created between firm level and state level human resource policies in areas such as skill formation and workers need for voice economic growth is unlikely to be sustainable Trade Unions and Labour Movements in the Asia-Pacific Region Byoung-Hoon Lee,Ng Sek-Hong,Russell Lansbury,2019-09-16 Recent developments in the world economy including deindustrialisation and the digital revolution have led to an increasingly individualistic relationship between workers and employers which in turn has weakened labour movements and worker representation However this process is not universal including in some countries of Asia where trade unions are closely aligned with the interests of the dominant political party and the state This book considers the many challenges facing trade unions and worker representation in a wide range of Asian countries For each country full background is given on how trade unions and other forms of worker representation have arisen Key questions then considered include the challenges facing trade unions and worker representation in each country the extent to which these are a result of global or local developments and the actions being taken by trade unions and worker representative bodies to cope with the challenges This book is dedicated to the memory of Professor Keith Thurley London School of Economics International and Comparative Employment Relations Greg J. Bamber,Russell D Lansbury,Nick Wailes,2004-03-27 Earlier editions of this text have become the standard reference for a worldwide readership of practitioners in governments companies and unions and students This revised edition analyzes employment relations in the UK USA Canada Australia Italy France Germany Sweden Japan and Korea
