Information Ecologies Bonnie A. Nardi, Vicki O'Day, 2000-02-28 A call for informed responsible engagement with information technology at the local level The common rhetoric about technology falls into two extreme categories uncritical acceptance or blanket rejection Claiming a middle ground Bonnie Nardi and Vicki O Day call for responsible informed engagement with technology in local settings which they call information ecologies An information ecology is a system of people practices technologies and values in a local environment Nardi and O Day encourage the reader to become more aware of the ways people and technology are interrelated They draw on their empirical research in offices libraries schools and hospitals to show how people can engage their own values and commitments while using technology Together with Technology Jason Swarts, 2017-03-02 This book examines the complex roles that texts serve as parts of an organizational cognitive infrastructure Texts make knowledge and experience tangible and durable They help shape interactions between people As professions have become more writing centered in recent decades many organizations have instituted writing review practices to help newcomers produce better writing and thus become more effective organizational citizens Dr Swarts examines those writing review practices and questions whether available supportive technologies adequately prepare professional writers and professionals who write to appreciate the complex functions their texts serve He reports on a study of the impact of two technologies paper text and textual replay on writing review Unlike paper which presents texts in a static form textual replay presents texts as the products of writing practices Textual replay records onscreen writing activity and creates a video that writers and reviewers use to supplement their discussion of revisions Innovation and the Creative Process Lars Fuglsang, 2008-01-01 After phenomenology and feminism the concept of care is taken forward to conceive innovation as an interactive process requiring diversity and collectivity A fresh look at innovation is grounded in the long standing experience of the Roskilde group and it takes the readers into an intriguing voyage in practical creativity Silvia Gherardi Dipartimento di Sociologia e Ricerca Sociale Italy It is not an easy task to be innovative in the large and increasing field of innovation studies We should therefore thank and welcome the Roskilde School for achieving such a difficult task This book provides a new and promising vision of innovation which is metaphorically called innovation with care This new theory draws upon a sociological perspective in order to open up the black box of the organization It brings interacting people and social process to the forefront of innovation phenomena Innovation and the Creative Process explores innovation with care illustrating that it is possible to integrate in the innovation theory a wide range of specialized and non specialized actors activities and forms of business and social innovations Following the Schumpeterian tradition it provides a more comprehensive notion of innovation and enlarges the scope of innovation theory This book represents a fruitful approach to innovation which academics private and public practitioners should consider with much care Fa z Gallouj University of Lille France This book explores new frameworks and methods of understanding and analysing innovation These are set against a backdrop of innovation with care which is seen as a phenomenon that takes place among many actors with different perspectives ideas and cultures that must be carefully woven together in order to achieve the benefits of innovation The new perspectives presented by the contributors will be important in encouraging successful innovation across sectors organizations and people They examine how people and organizations deal with the tensions and paradoxes in the innovative process between creativity and innovation variation and selection and sense and strategy making The book also includes a sociological approach to innovation as a complement to economic perspectives in order to better understand how people can benefit from innovation in a number of interesting private and public cases To benefit from innovation it concludes people depend less on formal roles and formal organization than on a caring approach that enables them to deal with and interpret evolutions across people organizations and sectors This highly original innovative book will provide fascinating reading for a diverse audience including academics researchers policymakers and managers with an interest in innovation organization studies institutional theory and more generally business and management

Digital Library Use Ann Peterson-Kemp, Nancy A. Van House, Barbara P. Battenfield, 2003-10-10 Viewing digital libraries as sociotechnical systems networks of people and technology interacting with society The contributors to this volume view digital libraries DLs from a social as well as technological perspective They see DLs as sociotechnical systems networks of technology information artifacts and people and practices interacting with the larger world of work and society As Bruce Schatz observes in his foreword for a digital library to be useful the users the documents and the information system must be in harmony The contributors begin by asking how we evaluate DLs how we can understand them in order to build better DLs but they move beyond these basic concerns to explore how DLs make a difference in people's lives and their social worlds and what studying DLs might tell us about information knowledge and social and cognitive processes The chapters using both empirical and analytical methods examine the social impact of DLs and also the web of social and material relations in which DLs are embedded these far ranging social worlds include such disparate groups as community activists environmental researchers middle school children and computer system designers Topics Documents and society the real boundaries of a library without walls the ecologies of digital libraries usability and evaluation information and institutional change transparency as a product of the convergence of social practices and information artifacts and collaborative knowledge construction in digital libraries done behind the scenes including the everyday tasks of collecting archiving displaying museum objects and retrieving information Tran argues that while the technical components of infrastructure are necessary for memory making and knowledge production it is the social part of museum infrastructure that enables more open and decentralised modes of memory making The book shows how these negotiations affect the ability of museum infrastructures to accommodate and support growth and development expanding access and establishing modes of connection to external partners and services It illuminates the less visible practices of museums which nevertheless directly affect their more public outward facing activities Negotiating Digital Heritage Infrastructures will be of interest to academics and students who are engaged in the study of museums and heritage It will be particularly useful to those with an interest in public participation social inclusion heritage management the digitisation of collections data aggregation and human centred design approaches Usability

Rethinking Technology in Schools Primer Vanessa Elaine Domine, 2009 Among the many challenges facing public schooling in the United States is the often irrelevant usage of technology in the classroom in ways that support the textbook and computer industries more than student learning and achievement This primer reframes the longstanding debate about instructional technology in school classrooms and challenges the reader to think more critically and conscientiously about the fundamental communication and technological processes that mediate learning and ultimately define education The primer offers educators at all levels a three dimensional map for exploring the philosophical pedagogical and practical uses of technology to serve rather than subvert the public purposes of education in a democracy The Education Ecology of

Universities Robert A. Ellis, Peter Goodyear, 2019-03-26 Many universities around the world are finding that the structures and processes they have put in place to further their educational missions are being tested by rapidly changing circumstances These changes involve new pedagogies new course designs new technologies and updating of the physical campus reflecting diversifying student needs growing student numbers increasing competition and more demanding stakeholder expectations The Education Ecology of Universities examines these issues starting with the challenges identified by university leaders who have responsibility for education digital and campus planning Sharing an analysis of in depth interviews with more than 50 leaders it identifies a range of conceptual and procedural gaps that undermine the full development and alignment of education digital and campus strategies The second half of the book provides practical ideas for taking a more holistic indeed ecological approach to understanding and improving university learning environments Setting out a case for a new applied science of educational ecology this book offers foundational concepts and theoretical perspectives introducing methods for analysing and evaluating teaching and learning ecosystems It will be of interest to anyone who wants better ways of understanding how local systems function and can be improved It is a must read text for all leaders and researchers in education and indeed for anyone concerned with the future of higher education A Psychology of User Experience Phil Turner, 2017-12-02 It is well established that while cognitive psychology provides a sound foundation for an understanding of our interactions with digital technology this is no longer sufficient to make sense of how we use and experience the personal relational and ubiquitous technologies that pervade everyday life This book begins with a consideration of the nature of experience itself and the user experience UX of digital technology in particular offering a new broader definition of the term This is elaborated through a wide ranging and rigorous review of what are argued to be the three core UX elements These are involvement including shared sense making familiarity appropriation and being with technologies affect including emotions with and about technology impressions feelings and mood and aesthetics including embodied aesthetics and neuroaesthetics Alongside this new insights are introduced into how and why much of our current use of digital technology is simply idling or killing time A particular feature of the book is a thorough treatment of parallel and sometimes competing accounts from differing academic traditions Overall the discussion considers both foundational and more recent theoretical and applied perspectives from social psychology evolutionary psychology folk psychology neuroaesthetics neuropsychology the philosophy of technology design and the fine arts This broad scope will be enlightening and stimulating for anyone concerned in understanding UX A Psychology of User Experience stands as a companion text to the author's HCI Redux text which discusses the contemporary treatment of cognition in human computer interaction

Reconfiguring the Museum
Ana-Maria Herman, 2023-02-10 Digital media technologies have provided an occasion not only for novel ways to display and exhibit collections but also for new politics to arise as museums and urban settings change While some believe these changes are driven by humans others see digital media technologies at the heart of these changes Reconfiguring the Museum offers a third explanation that considers both the social and technical together and thereby captures the experimental nature of introducing novel digital media technologies to museums and the uncertainty messiness contingency and complexity involved In this sociotechnical case study of a novel augmented reality app first designed to exhibit collections from the Museum of London across the sprawling capital city and later remade for the McCord Museum to display collections throughout Montreal Ana Maria Herman reveals how the app introduced unexpected new relations between the museums their collections advertising agencies sponsors technology companies corporations urban spaces and end users She shows how museum practices related to curating designing building visiting and modifying exhibitions were transformed and how in such unsettled arrangements what we think of as old cultural politics can unexpectedly re emerge while new digital politics related to big data surveillance and automated processes may not necessarily materialize A detailed account of emerging actors and practices involved in making digital exhibitions Reconfiguring the Museum offers practical considerations for museum culture and heritage practitioners charged with creating digital displays and accounting for their success or failure
