Information Age I. Th. M. Snellen, Wim B. H. J. van de Donk, 1998 This book is a joint effort of researchers who have been involved in research projects and programmes that have been trying to chart and reflect upon the implications of Information and Communication Technologies ICTs for Public Administration Tilburg Rotterdam Kassel Irvine Nottingham Glasgow Since the fifties computers had largely facilitated and the transformation of the minimal Night Watch state into the modern Welfare state through their contribution to their effectivity productivity and efficiency In most Handbooks of Public Administration computers are seen as neutral instruments and most of the time the role of computer technologies in the transformation of public administration is completely neglected This deafening silence is a great contrast with the way ICT s are actually changing public administration The faster the developments in a field of study are the more difficult it is to let the theories related to that field of study mature In such circumstances most statements will remain provisional and context dependent 25 years of research in Irvine California and Kassel Germany and more than 10 years of research in Tilburg Rotterdam The Netherlands and about seven years of research in Glasgow Nottingham the United Kingdom nonetheless enables the presentation of a modest image of public administration as it is entering the information age Researchers in each of these groups have nevertheless not stopped trying to phrase theories about the implications of informatization for public administration with a more or less large scope that are robust in different contexts and over longer periods of time These results and theories covering a broad set of elements of the body of knowledge of public administration are presented in this volume As the authors try to demonstrate in this book informatization developments in public administration do not only challenge the existing body of knowledge of the public administration discipline but they are also opening up new perspectives and paradigms for the study of public administration Publications of the National Bureau of Standards 1977

Reconceptualizing Development in the Global Information Age Manuel Castells, Pekka Himanen, 2014 The conditions in which development the process by which people individually and collectively enhance their capacities to improve their lives according to their values and interests operates have significantly changed in the global information age a period characterized by the technological revolution in information and communication the rise of the networking form of social organization and the global interdependence of economies and societies This volume aims to redefine the means and goals of development in this new context first by characterizing the specific mode of development informational development that the authors consider to be the driver of the creation of material wealth in the twenty first century secondly by reconceptualizing human development as the fulfilment of human wellbeing in the multidimensionality of the human experience ultimately affirming dignity as the supreme value of development thirdly by examining the relationship between informational development and human development After first setting out its analytical framework the book brings together a diverse set of empirically rich case studies to illustrate this investigation from across the globe Silicon Valley Costa Rica Chile South Africa Finland the European Union and China and concludes by attempting to reconceptualize development It raises important questions and provides observations including examining the concept of dignity as development to contribute to a policy debate that should provide specific answers linked to the conditions of each society and be enacted by democratic institutions in a concerted global effort to save humankind while there is still time

Returning to Interpersonal Dialogue and Understanding Human Communication in the Digital Age Brown Sr., Michael

A., Hersey, Leigh, 2018-07-20 Digital collaboration is abundant in today's world but it is often problematic and does not provide an apt solution to the human need for comprehensive communication. Humans require more personal interactions beyond what can be achieved online. Returning to Interpersonal Dialogue and Understanding Human Communication in the Digital Age is a collection of innovative studies on the methods and applications of comparing online human interactions to face-to-face interactions. While highlighting topics including digital collaboration, social media, and privacy, this book is a vital reference source for public administrators, educators, businesses, academicians, and researchers seeking current research on the importance of non-digital communication between people. Professional Journal of the United States Army, 1994

e-Government in Asia: Origins, Politics, Impacts, Geographies Barney Warf, 2016-11-22 E-Government in Asia offers a thorough examination of e-governance in Asia, including the uses of the Internet to mediate interactions between Asian governments and their citizens. The book examines how the Internet is reshaping these interactions in the region and summarizes the nature of e-government, the growth of the Internet in Asia, issues of the digital divide, and how the Internet is affecting the ways in which public services are provided, how Asians acquire information, and other issues. Offers essential reading for many social science courses on Asia, including geography, political science, public administration, as well as courses on the social impacts of technology, notably the Internet. Examines issues of e-governance which loom large in significant Asian economies, including China. Examines how e-governance in Asia is shaped by regional geographies. Explores how the Internet is affecting the ways in which public services are provided and how Asians acquire information.

Historical Studies in Information Science Trudi Bellardo Hahn, Michael Keeble Buckland, 1998 The 25 contributions to this volume, largely reprinted from recent special issues of three information science journals devoted to historical topics, address an array of topics including Paul Otlet and his successors, techniques, tools, and systems, organizations, and individuals, theoretical issues, and literature. Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc., Portland, OR. Global politics in the information age Mark J. Lacy, Peter Wilkin, 2024-07-30 Global politics in the information age available in paperback for the first time presents a provocative and wide-ranging introduction to the notion that information technologies are creating new formations of power, control, and resistance across the planet. The essays, ranging from the language used by the Bush administration to shape the war on terror, the attempts to control the circulation of informational products, the strategies of media management deployed to shape how the war in Iraq during 2003 was presented in the public sphere, through to the attempts to brand economic globalisation and strategies of resistance developed by the anti-globalisation movement, unearth the new transformations that are unfolding in the twenty-first century. This collection of essays brings together academics working across the social sciences, from International Relations, Political Economy, Sociology, and Media Studies, to provide the reader with a number of different perspectives on the way that flows of images, capital, ideologies, and informational goods are creating global spaces of control and resistance. The book seeks to rethink approaches to global politics that see information society as closing down spaces of resistance while at the same time exploring the new formations of power that informational society is making possible The book offers clearly explained theoretical insight into the debates that are shaping discussion on global politics and information society with case studies that will be of interest to the student seeking to make sense of the changes that are unfolding
