S.,Dr. Vishwanatha, S.,Prof. Chandrashekara, B.,      Structural Transformation and Economic Development Banji Oyelaran-Oyeyinka,Kaushalesh Lal,2016-09-13 This book examines long term structural changes and the broad impact on economic development in regional comparative perspectives The book analyzes data across Africa Asia and Latin America It looks at key variables of productivity growth industrialization poverty urbanization and employment This book is concerned with understanding structural change dynamics and how it affects job creation living standards and the efficiency of productive cities through manufacturing productivity growth that benefits majority of citizens With empirical evidence from a selected number of developing countries including China India Brazil Nigeria and South Africa the book attempts to present the considerable structural changes of these countries over the last few decades It highlights that growth without the expected job creation is one of the distinct features of growth in emerging and developing countries It suggests that countries may well record economic growth whether through within sector productivity increase or through structural change but this may not necessarily lead to employment an important concern for long term development

The Political Mobilization of the European Left, 1860-1980 Stefano Bartolini,2000-08-28 In an in depth comparative analysis Stefano Bartolini studies the history of socialism and working class politics in Western Europe While examining the social contexts organizational structures and political developments of thirteen socialist experiences from the 1860s to the 1980s he reconstructs the steps through which social conflict was translated and structured into an opposition as well as how it developed its different organizational and ideological forms and how it managed more or less successfully to mobilize its reference groups politically

Consumer Choice in Historical Archaeology S.M. SpencerWood,2013-06-29 Historical archaeology has made great strides during the last two decades Early archaeological reports were dominated by descriptions of features and artifacts while research on artifacts was concentrated on studies of topology technology and chronology Site reports from the 1960s and 1970s commonly expressed faith in the potential artifacts had for aiding in the identifying socioeconomic status differences and for understanding the relationships between the social classes in terms of their material culture. An emphasis was placed on the presence or absence of porcelain or teaware as an indication of social status. These were typical features in site reports written just a few years ago. During this same period advances were being made in the study of food bone as archaeologists moved away from bone counts to minimal animal counts and then on to the costs of various cuts of meat. Within the last five years our ability to address questions of the relationship between material culture and socioeconomic status has greatly expanded. The essays in this volume present efforts toward measuring expenditure and consumption patterns represented by commonly recovered artifacts and food bone. These patterns of consumption are examined in conjunction with evidence from documentary sources that provide information on occupations, wealth levels, and ethnic affiliations of those that did the consuming. One of the refreshing aspects of these papers is that the authors are not afraid of documents and their use of them is not limited to a role of confirmation.

Introduction to SOCIOLOGY Dr. A. A. Gadwal, 2021-09-21 Science is the body of knowledge it can be acquired by application of scientific methods; the acquired knowledge is arranged systematically. Exploring and acquiring the different horizons of knowledge is not only the challenge before the researcher but also a matter of intellectual and scientific effort. The knowledge acquired through application of scientific methods is vast and scientific; the researcher is well equipped by such knowledge. The study of human society or sociology is the science of society; the knowledge of society is acquired by the empirical, factual, and scientific efforts of investigator; hence all social sciences are also treated as science. Classification of Science: Science is the scientific effort of man to acquire the knowledge for any human being; it is impossible to acquire and master all sort of knowledge and sciences. For the easement of research and acquisition of knowledge, all sciences have been classified into two broad categories: i.e.

Physical Sciences and Social Sciences both the sciences are studied with scientific attitude      Urbanization and Industrialization for Africa's Transformation ,2017 The 2017 Economic Report on Africa focuses on the linkages between industrialization and urbanization Urbanization is one of Africa mega trends with profound implications for the social economic environmental dimensions of growth and transformation Theory and experience demonstrate that industrialization and urbanization can be mutually reinforcing processes It is therefore imperative to explore the linkages between urbanization and industrialization given the profound implications for structural transformation in Africa So far current policy narratives and frameworks on structural transformation and industrialization in Africa have largely failed to factor in the spatial and urban dimensions of industrialization and in particular the advantages presented by productivity enhancement and agglomeration effects generated by cities Yet the nexus between urbanization and industrialization is of particular relevance for Agenda 2063 and the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development Both agendas recognize urbanization as a critical factor for sustainable development It is also important to consider urbanization and industrialization in light of Africa s engagement with the Third United Nations Conference on Housing and Sustainable Urban Development Habitat III to be held in Quito Ecuador in October 2016 In this context African policy makers have clearly recognized urbanization as an engine of structural transformation for inclusive and sustainable growth
