Informal City:

Rethinking the Informal City Felipe Hernández, Peter William Kellett, Lea K. Allen, 2012 Latin American cities have always been characterized by a strong tension between what is vaguely described as their formal and informal dimensions. However, the terms formal and informal refer not only to the physical aspect of cities but also to their entire socio-political fabric. Informal cities and settlements exceed the structures of order, control, and homogeneity that one expects to find in a formal city. Therefore, the contributors to this volume from such disciplines as architecture, urban planning, anthropology, urban design, cultural and urban studies, and sociology focus on alternative methods of analysis in order to study the phenomenon of urban informality. This book provides a thorough review of the work that is currently being carried out by scholars, practitioners, and governmental institutions in and outside Latin America on the question of informal cities. The Informal City Michel S. Laguerre, 2016-07-27 In this book Michel S. Laguerre argues that there exists an informal city located just beneath and in the interstices of the formal city. The metaphor is not geographical but rather structural and hermeneutical. This is the city where manoeuvres that cannot be done publicly, legally, ethically, or otherwise are performed. The author shows with illustrative data drawn from the American urban experience, the San Francisco, Oakland, Metropolitan area, why and how the informal city must be seen as the hidden dimension of the formal city. The Informal American City Vinit Mukhija, Anastasia Loukaitou-Sideris, 2014-05-09 Every day in American cities, street vendors spread out their wares on sidewalks, food trucks serve lunch from the curb, and homeowners hold sales in their front yards, examples of the wide range of informal activities that take place largely beyond the reach of government regulation. This book examines the informal revolution in American urban life, exploring a proliferating phenomenon often associated with developing countries rather than industrialized ones and often dismissed by planners and policy makers as marginal or even criminal. The case studies and analysis in The Informal City challenge this narrow conception of informal urbanism. The chapters look at informal urbanism across the country, empirically and theoretically, in cities that include Los Angeles, Sacramento, Seattle, Portland, Phoenix, Kansas City, Atlantic City, and New York City. They cover activities that range from unpermitted in-law apartments and ad hoc support for homeless citizens to urban agriculture, street vending, and day labor. The contributors consider the nature and underlying logic of these activities, argue for a spatial understanding of informality and its varied settings, and discuss regulatory planning and community responses. Publisher's website The Illegal City Ayona Datta, 2016-03-03 The Illegal City explores the relationship between space, law, and gendered subjectivity through a close look at an illegal squatter settlement in Delhi. Since 2000, a series of judicial rulings in India have criminalised squatters as illegal citizens, encroachers, and pickpockets of urban land, and have led to a spate of slum demolitions across the country. This book argues that in this context, it has become vital to distinguish between illegality and informality, since it is those illegal slums which are at the receiving end of a force of law where law is violently encountered within everyday spaces. This book uses a gendered intersectional lens to explore how a violence of law shapes how public subjectivities of gender class religion and caste are encountered and negotiated within the private spaces of home family and neighbourhood This book suggests that resettlement is not a condition that squatters desire rather something that is seen as the only way out of the illegal city The wait for resettlement is a temporal space of anxiety and uncertainty where particular kinds of politics around law space and gender takes shape which transform squatters relations with the state urban development civil society and with each other Through their everyday struggles around water sanitation social and political organisation and the transformation of their homes and families this book shows that the desire for the legal city is also the irony and utopia of home which will remain an incomplete gendered project both for the state and for squatters areas the need for research into this complexity to address the large scale challenges of urban life has never been greater This collection of research studies from different parts of the world brings together case studies underpinned by theory to contribute to the urgent search to make our cities more just more livable more accessible more participatory and more democratic in short more humane places to live and work These crosscutting themes of social inclusion spatial integration and poverty alleviation are the ever present motifs and motivations throughout this volume The eleven chapters are grouped into four interrelated sections the creation and representation of the urban the production and transformation of the informal the construction and appropriation of public spaces and finally the transformation use and meaning of home Collectively the essays engage with the city at a range of scales but underpinning all of them is a concern for the everyday realities of ordinary people s lives These detailed and finegrain analyses of complex processes are a modest contribution towards the creation of cities which are not simply more economically viable and environmentally sustainable but also embody the ideals of social justice

Urban Agriculture for Growing City Regions Undine Giseke, Maria Gerster-Bentaya, Frank Helten, Matthias Kraume, Dieter Scherer, Guido Spars, Fouad Amraoui, Abdelaziz Adidi, Said Berdouz, Mohamed Chlada, Majid Mansour, Mohamed Mdafai, 2015-09-07 This book demonstrates how agriculture can play a determining role in integrated climate optimised urban development Agriculture within urban growth centres today is more than an economic or social left over or a niche practice It is instead a complex system that offers multiple potentials for interaction with the urban system Urban open space and agriculture can be linked to a productive green infrastructure this forms new urban rural linkages in the urbanizing region and helps shape the city But in order to do this agriculture has to be seen as an integral part of the urban fabric and it has to be put on the local agenda Urban Agriculture for Growing City Regions takes the example of Casablanca one of the fastest growing cities in North Africa to investigate this approach The creation of synergies between the urban and rural in an emerging megacity is demonstrated through pilot projects design solutions and multifunctional modules These synergies assure greater resource efficiency particularly regarding the use and reuse of water and they strengthen regional food security and the social integration of multiple spheres A transdisciplinary research approach brings together different scientific disciplines and local actors into a process of integrated knowledge production The book will have a long lasting legacy and is essential reading for researchers planners practitioners and policy makers who are working on urban development and urban agricultural strategies

The City, Revisited Dennis R. Judd, Dick W. Simpson, 2011 Reexamining urban scholarship for the twenty first century The West-African City Jérôme Chenal, 2014-05-08 Rapid growth unmanageable cities urban crisis macrocephali The cities of west Africa are no longer plannable at least not using traditional urban development tools Without negating the importance of participatory processes in city creation it nonetheless seems crucial to return to city plans and models to what cities convey and how they are built But to understand the city in all its depth and richness we must also hit the streets The West African City proposes a dual perspective At the urban scale it analyses historical trajectories spatial development and urban planning documents to highlight the major trends beyond the plans At the second level that of public space the street is discussed as the city's lifeblood By innovating approaches and testing new methods The West African City offers an unconventional look at Nouakchott Dakar and Abidjan the three study sites for this investigation The city of today in Africa or elsewhere must re-examine its many social economic cultural political and spatial dimensions for this urban research has begun challenging its own methods This book is also the companion of Chenal's MOOC African cities

Clown of the City Stephan de Beer, 2020-11-25 At opening this book everything one has learned or thought about urban ministry is challenged and changed Stephan de Beer offers a fresh exciting and thoroughly engaging approach The title is enticing and playful but the book is a serious grappling with the daunting realities of a shadowed marginalised urban life It does not theorise or pontificate about a concept The author is not a distant neutral observer He is an engaged minister to the people a struggler in their struggles prophet to the powerful This book invites the reader to join the people of the cities under siege by failed policies empty promises and disastrous politics in their struggles for meaningful life and it makes a powerful persuasive case Stephan de Beer has offered us a great gift and a wonderful opportunity to think and hope anew and differently about the life reality and future of the city

Revitalizing City Districts Hebatalla Abouelfadl, Dalila ElKerdany, Christoph Wessling, 2017-01-16 This book explores the consequences of change in the urban form the amalgam of the urban space and buildings and on the processes leading to planning and design Urban form and its fabric result from a multitude of individual interests ideas and decisions which in turn result in specific and locally diverse spatial arrangements These processes which are shaping our built environment are embedded in and determined by different contexts of political cultural and social economic norms and values Urban development and the transformation of urban structures are triggered by technological innovations laws and taxes new behaviors or the impact of environmental conditions as well as other factors Based on case studies from Egypt and the Middle East together with some cases from Germany and Turkey this book covers a wide range of change processes focused on historic and inner city districts

Making an African City Jennifer Hart, 2024-03-05 In Making an African City Jennifer Hart traces the way that British colonial officials Accra Town Council members and a diverse group of technocrats used regulation to define what an acceptable city looked like Unlike cities elsewhere on the continent Accra had a long history of urbanism that predated British colonial presence By criminalizing some activities and privileging others colonial officials sought to marginalize indigenous practices of Accra residents and shape the development of a new modern city Hart argues however that residents regularly pushed back protesting regulations refusing to participate in newly developed systems reappropriating infrastructure demanding rights to city services and asserting their own informal vision for the future of the city While urban plans and regulations ultimately failed to substantively remake the city their effects were and are still felt by urban residents who are often subject to but not served by urban infrastructure Making an African City explores how the informalization of

Accra's development was a historical process not a natural and self-evident phenomenon which connects the history of the city with the history of urban development and the growth of technocracy around the world The City Reader Richard T. infrastructure which rework resource distribution and value creation through new infrastructural spaces and territorialities which rebundle socio technical systems for particular interests and claims and through changing offsets between individual and collective appropriation experience and mobilization of infrastructure With contributions from leading authorities in the field and drawing on theoretical advances and original empirical material this book is a major contribution to an ongoing infrastructural turn in urban studies and will be of interest to all those concerned by the diverse forms and contested outcomes of contemporary urban change across North and South Recoded City Thomas Ermacora, Lucy
