Information Metrics And Measures For Valuing Information:

The Metrics of Science and Technology Eliezer Geisler, 2000-08-30 Dr Geisler's far-reaching unique book provides an encyclopedic compilation of the key metrics to measure and evaluate the impact of science and technology on academia, industry, and government. Focusing on such items as economic measures, patents, peer review, and other criteria, and supported by an extensive review of the literature, Dr. Geisler gives a thorough analysis of the strengths and weaknesses inherent in metric design and in the use of the specific metrics he cites. His book has already received prepublication attention and will prove especially valuable for academics in technology management, engineering, and science policy, industrial R&D, government science and technology policymakers, and scientists and managers in government research and technology institutions. Geisler maintains that the application of metrics to evaluate science and technology at all levels illustrates the variety of tools we currently possess. Each metric has its own unique strengths and weaknesses, but overall metrics offer the best possible way to evaluate science and technology. He then finds that in general science and technology have a positive effect on the human experience. Truly state-of-the-art in the study of the metrics of science and technology, their outcomes and contributions to society and the economy, the book provides unique analyses of the academic world and its most useful metrics, the industrial science and technology research and development complex, and the government network of laboratories. For each, Geisler gives a comprehensive analysis of the main metrics and their best applications. His book is thus also usable in certain advanced undergraduate and graduate courses and seminars that treat technology and engineering management, project management in technology industries, and the evaluation of social and economic programs.

Untrapped Value: 1.01 Software Reuse Powering Future Prosperity Dave R. Erickson,2023-03-25 Mankind has invested vast resources time manhours computer machinery sunk costs maintenance building space heating venting cooling and so on into software for all kinds of digital and analog hardware for over sixty years Far longer if you consider punched cards and so on In the end most of the source code ends in the waste heap of history Old code gets forgotten rub bished and a new wave of developers is forced to recreate new versions of old ideas

People get promoted graduate from college and leave to get married before they do they don t have time don t believe in the priority and don t place the code where others can find it to make an important curation of their software and by this donate it to future generations worldwide the society at large If organizations at the other end of the spectrum would realign software for a legacy of centuries instead of product runs mankind can preserve the sunk costs speed up advancement and make software impact far wider when it s made in a reusable form People move to a new job and remake linked lists factory classes or ring buffers in the new language of the day or within the design paradigm of the latest fad management It s kind of insane when you think about it people spend many years getting a consumer product working finely tuned and profitable Then two companies merge product lines are unified or obsoleted and some or all of the intellectual property gets forgotten in a corner as one team is merged and the others retire to golf or the pool While filling in cardboard boxes of stuff as they leave does anyone drag out the old tapes and floppies to make sure the new guys aren t starting by reinventing the wheel
