explains that cautionary tales about online risk have shaped the way we think about technology and youth She analyzes the discourses of risk in popular culture journalism and policy and finds that harm driven expectations based on a privileged perception of risk enact control over technology Opportunity driven expectations on the other hand based on evidence and lived experience produce discourses that acknowledge the practices and agency of young people rather than seeing them as passive victims who need to be protected Vickery first addresses how the discourses of risk regulate and control technology then turns to the online practices of youth at a low income minority majority Texas high school She considers the participation gap and the need for schools to teach digital literacies privacy and different online learning ecologies Finally she shows that opportunity driven expectations can guide young people s online experiences in ways that balance protection and agency
