Verbal Processes in Children Charles J. Brainerd,Michael Pressley,2012-12-06 For some time now the study of cognitive development has been far and away the most active discipline within developmental psychology Although there would be much disagreement as to the exact proportion of papers published in developmental journals that could be considered cognitive 50% seems like a conservative estimate Hence a series of scholarly books to be devoted to work in cognitive development is especially appropriate at this time The Springer Series in Cognitive Development contains two basic types of books namely edited collections of original chapters by several authors and original volumes written by one author or a small group of authors The flagship for the Springer Series will be a serial publication of the advances type carrying the subtitle Progress in Cognitive Development Research Each volume in the Progress sequence will be strongly thematic in that it will be limited to some well defined domain of cognitive developmental research e g logical and mathematical development semantic development All Progress volumes will be edited collections Editors of such collections upon consultation with the Series Editor may elect to have their books published either as contributions to the Progress sequence or as separate volumes All books written by one author or a small group of authors will be published as separate volumes within the series A fairly broad definition of cognitive development is being used in the selection of books for this series

Script Switching in Roman Egypt Edward O. D. Love, 2021-12-06 Script Switching in Roman Egypt studies the hieroglyphic hieratic demotic and Old Coptic manuscripts which evidence the conventions governing script use the domains of writing those scripts inhabited and the shift of scripts between those domains to elucidate the obsolescence of those scripts from their domains during the Roman Period Utilising macro level frameworks from sociolinguistics the textual culture from four sites is contextualised within the priestly communities of speech script and practice that produced them Utilising micro level frameworks from linguistics both the scripts of the Egyptian writing system written and the way the orthographic methods fundamental to those scripts changed are typologised This study also treats the way in which morphographic and alphabetic orthographies are deciphered and understood by the reading brain and how changes in spelling over time both resulted from and responded to dimensions of orthographic depth Through a cross cultural consideration of script obsolescence in Mesoamerica and Mesopotamia and by analogy to language death in speech communities a model of domain bydomain shift and obsolescence of the scripts of the Egyptian writing system is proposed
