

A photograph of a narrow dirt path winding through a dense forest. The sun is shining brightly from the upper right, creating a strong lens flare and illuminating the scene with a warm, golden light. The trees on either side of the path are tall and their leaves are backlit by the sun, appearing as a soft, glowing canopy. The path itself is dark and leads the eye into the distance.

Forty singing seamen* Alfred Noyes, 1913 God You're Breaking My Heart Brian Grogan, 2016-05-07 Most of us puzzle all our lives over suffering. Why should this happen to me? Why should that happen to someone whom I love? Is God out to punish me? What have I done to deserve this? The problem of suffering and evil tortures the human mind. Each of us develops our little philosophy of suffering. I deserved it. God punishes those he loves. Darkness is the shadow of God's outstretched hand, etc. From the beginning we can presume humankind puzzled over the things that went wrong: injury, death, famine. Only when we meet God face to face will our complaints and queries be fully set at rest. In the meantime we can be comforted and comfort others by the glow of light that the Christian tradition offers. On a dark night even a small candle is a help until the big light is switched on. Divine light shines in the darkness of suffering which the darkness cannot overcome. The Spirit of the Oxford Movement Owen Chadwick, 1992-02-27 The Spirit of the Oxford Movement brings together some of Owen Chadwick's most important and characteristic essays on the Tractarian Movement and the Church of England in the Victorian era. Along with studies of Newman, Liddon, Edward King, and Henri Bremond are included more general essays surveying the reaction of the Established Church and on the nature of Catholicism. In particular the revision of the long unobtainable analysis of The Mind of the Oxford Movement illustrates once again the profound contribution Owen Chadwick has made to our understanding of religion in Britain in the nineteenth century Musical Times and Singing Class Circular, 1898 Studies of Familiar Hymns Louis FitzGerald Benson, 1903 Hymns and the Christian Myth Lionel Adey, 2011-11-01 From its beginnings in the Bible Christian hymnology has fulfilled three functions praise recital and teaching of the Myth and collective and personal adoration as well as the foundation and worship of the church In Hymns and the Christian Myth Lionel Adey demonstrates that over the centuries shifts emphasizing particular elements of the Christian faith accord with the interests and concerns of the times in which the hymns were composed Using a broad range of texts Adey deals with major themes of every period from biblical times to the early twentieth century In tracing the changes in representation of the Father Son Holy Spirit and Four Last Things in early and medieval Latin hymns post Reformation chorales and psalm based hymns and English hymns from the time of Watts the book shows an increasing sense of personal response to the Incarnation and Passion of Christ and of participation in His redemptive work Chapters on hymnody of the Nativity and Passion illustrate the tendency of monastic poets the Learned tradition to focus on dogma mystery and paradox and carolists the Popular tradition to convey devotional tenderness Those on hymnody of the Holy Spirit illustrate a shift through the medieval period from representing pentecostal events to exploring their spiritual meaning During the Reformation and the Evangelical Revival the weight of hymnody shifts first to the Father and then to the Son s Passion and Atonement applied personally and inwardly re lived by the convert Most consistently hymnic representations of the Last Things shift their focus from collective to individual judgement from death as sleep until the general awakening to death as instant passage to reunion with family and friends As a hymnologist rather than a theologian Adey makes no pronouncements on the truth of Christian beliefs His focus is on how poets have expressed them over two millennia As such the book will interest not only students of religion but also those in such related disciplines as literature psychology history and sociology
