Kinship in the Admiralty Islands Margaret Mead, 2011 Kinship in the Admiralty Islands Daniel Elazar, 2018-01-16 The Manus of New Guinea's Pere village were Margaret Mead's most favored community; the people to whom she returned five times before she died in 1978. Kinship in the Admiralty Islands is the classic and only thorough description of their complex rules of marriage and family relations. It draws on Mead's 1928-1929 field work conducted with her second husband, New Zealander Reo Fortune, and benefits by her being able to cross-check her data with his. Written in 1931, Kinship followed Mead's first and very popular book on the Manus, Growing Up in New Guinea, which was criticized by other anthropologists for being too general in scope. In Kinship, Mead succeeded in demonstrating her thorough knowledge of this Melanesian group in the specific terms prized by her scholarly colleagues while also describing in depth Manus social structure. Kinship in the Admiralty Islands describes an intricate system of social restraints and kinship ties and their impact on the local economy. The Manus predilection for adoption, for example, allows surrogate fathers to make extended marriage payments while in the next generation their adopted sons will take on the same responsibility for other young men in the new kin network. Mead reviews other kinship rules such as avoidance behavior between in-laws of the opposite sex, early betrothals, other forms of adoption, and a range of deference behavior and joking relations among kin. In this work, Mead walks a fine line between functionalist kinship analysis of the British school of Radcliffe Brown and the cultural and personality orientation of Americans in the school of Franz Boas. Jeanne Guillemin's new introduction provides a lively in-depth description of Margaret Mead's career in the early days of anthropology, the sometimes negative reactions of her contemporaries to her work, and her reasons for writing Kinship in the Admiralty Islands, as well as Mead's later reactions to how her Manus entered the modern world. Margaret Mead was noted for directing her writings to both scholars and laymen alike. Kinship in the Admiralty Islands will be of interest to anthropologists and general readers interested in the peoples of the South Pacific. Margaret Mead was curator of ethnology of the American Museum of Natural History. She was the author of many books, including Continuities in Cultural Evolution (available from Transaction), The Study of Culture at a Distance, The Mountain of Arapesh, and From the South Seas. Kinship in the Admiralty Islands Margaret Mead,Pliny Earle Goddard,Wendell Clark Bennett,1933 Kinship in the Admiralty Islands. Anthropological Papers of the AMNH ; V. 34 , Structure and Process in a Melanesian Society A.H. Carrier,J.G. Carrier,2012-10-12 First Published in 1991 In the 1980s many anthropologists rejected the classic concern with the structure and logic of social organisation and embraced instead a concern with process with the fluidity of events and individual strategy Through its analysis of a Melanesian society and the ways it has changed in the twentieth century this book addresses the relationship between the classic structural approach and the more recent processual one The society analysed is Ponam located on a small island in Papua New Guinea The book describes Ponam kinship and ceremonial exchange and so compliments the authors analysis of Onam economic organisation in Wage Tarde and Exchange in Melanesia Like its companion volume this book locates Ponanm in its broader social political and economic environment

Theorizing Native Studies Audra Simpson,2014-05-07 This important collection makes a compelling argument for the importance of theory in Native studies Within the field there has been understandable suspicion of theory stemming both from concerns about urgent political issues needing to take precedence over theoretical speculations and from hostility toward theory as an inherently Western imperialist epistemology The editors of Theorizing Native Studies take these concerns as the ground for recasting theoretical endeavors as attempts to identify the larger institutional and political structures that enable racism inequities and the displacement of indigenous peoples They emphasize the need for Native people to be recognized as legitimate theorists and for the theoretical work happening outside the academy in Native activist groups and communities to be acknowledged Many of the essays demonstrate how Native studies can productively engage with others seeking to dismantle and decolonize the settler state including scholars putting theory to use in critical ethnic

Molloy, 2008-02-20 Margaret Mead's career took off in 1928 with the publication of Coming of Age in Samoa Within ten years she was the best known academic in the United States a role she enjoyed all of her life In On Creating a Usable Culture Maureen Molloy explores how Mead was influenced by and influenced the meanings of American culture and secured for herself a unique and enduring place in the American popular imagination She considers this in relation to Mead's four popular ethnographies written between the wars Coming of Age in Samoa Growing Up in New Guinea The Changing Culture of an Indian Tribe and Sex and Temperament in Three Primitive

Societies and the academic middle brow and popular responses to them Molloy argues that Mead was heavily influenced by the debates concerning the forging of a distinctive American culture that began around 1911 with the publication of George Santayana's The Genteel Tradition. The creation of a national culture would solve the problems of alienation and provincialism and establish a place for both native born and immigrant communities. Mead drew on this vision of an integrated culture and used her primitive societies as exemplars of how cultures attained or failed to attain this ideal. Her ethnographies are really about America; the peoples she studied serving as the personifications of what were widely understood to be the dilemmas of American selfhood in a materialistic individualistic society. Two themes subtend Molloy's analysis. The first is Mead's articulation of the individual's relation to his or her culture via the trope of sex. Each of her early ethnographies focuses on a character and his or her problems as expressed through sexuality. This thematic ties her work closely to the popularization of psychoanalysis at the time with its understanding of sex as the key to the self. The second theme involves the change in Mead's attitude toward and definition of culture from the cultural determinism in Coming of Age to culture as the enemy of the individual in Sex and Temperament. This trend parallels the consolidation and objectification of popular and professional notions about culture in the 1920s and 1930s. On Creating a Usable Culture will be eagerly welcomed by those with an interest in American studies and history, cultural studies and the social sciences and most especially by readers of American intellectual history, the history of anthropology, gender studies and studies of modernism.

Confronting Margaret Mead Lenora Foerstel, 1994-07-28 The legendary Margaret Mead changed Americans' views of themselves by relating information collected from remote peoples to our society, a society that she did not consider necessarily to be the pinnacle of human development. However, Mead and her followers have been criticized for promulgating sensationalized and inaccurate images of Melanesian societies, including savagery, cannibalism, and wanton sexuality. This book deals with the consequences of such Western condescension. Destined to be highly controversial, this book for the first time brings a multicultural outlook to bear on Margaret Mead, scrutinizing her role and impact on Western anthropology, colonialism, and strategic and business interests in the South Pacific. The contributors, most of them avowedly activist supporters of the concept of a nuclear-free and independent Pacific, include Warilea Iamo, Papua New Guinea's first anthropologist; John D. Waiko, Director of the New Guinea Institute of Applied Social and Economic Research; Nahau Rooney, the daughter of one of Mead's informants; and Susanna Ounei, a leader of a New Caledonian independence front. Author note: Lenora Foerstel is an instructor in Ethnohistory at the Maryland College of Art. She was a member of the 1953 American Museum of Natural History Expedition to Manus Island, led by Dr. Margaret Mead. Angela Gilliam teaches at Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington. She has served as adviser to the Papua New Guinea Permanent Mission to the United Nations on New Caledonia.

Cooperation and Competition Among Primitive Peoples Margaret Mead, 2018-02-06 In many respects, this volume is a pioneer effort in anthropological literature. It remains firmly part of the genre of cooperative research or interdisciplinary research though at the time of its original publication that phrase had yet to be coined. Additionally, this work is more theoretical in nature than a faithful anthropological record as all the essays were written in New York City on a low budget and without fieldwork. The significance of these studies lies in the fact that Cooperation and Competition Among Primitive Peoples was the first attempt to think about the very complex problems of cultural character and social structure coupled with a meticulous execution of comparative study.

Mediating and Remediating Death Dorte Refslund Christensen, Kjetil Sandvik, 2016-04-29. From the ritual object which functions as a substitute for the dead, thus acting as a medium for communicating with the other world, to the representation of death, violence, and suffering in media or the use of online social networks as spaces of commemoration, media of various kinds are central to the communication and performance of death-related socio-cultural practices of individuals, groups, and societies. This second volume of the Studies in Death Materiality and Time series explores the ways in which such practices are subject to re-mediation, that is to say, processes by which well-known practices are re-presented in new ways through various media formats. Presenting rich interdisciplinary, new empirical case studies and fieldwork from the US and Europe, Asia, The Middle East, Australasia, and Africa, Mediating and Remediating Death shows how different media forms contribute to the shaping and transformation of various forms of death and commemoration, whether in terms of their range and distribution, their relation to users, or their roles in creating and maintaining communities. With its broad and multi-faceted focus on how uses of media can redraw the traditional boundaries of death-related practices and create new cultural realities, this book will appeal to scholars across the social sciences and humanities with interests in ritual and commemoration practices, the sociology and anthropology of death and dying, and cultural and media studies.

Talking 'Bout Your Mama Elijah Wald, 2012-06-01. From Two Live Crew's controversial comedy to Ice Cube's gangsta styling and the battle rhymes of a streetcorner cypher, rap has always drawn on deep traditions of African American poetic word play. In Talking Bout Your Mama, author Elijah Wald explores one of the most potent sources of rap: the viciously funny, outrageously inventive insult game known as the dozens. So what is the dozens? At its simplest, it's a comic chain of yo mama jokes. At its most complex, it's an intricate form of social interaction that reaches back to African ceremonial rituals. Wald traces the tradition of African American street rhyming and verbal combat that has ruled urban neighborhoods since the early 1900s. Whether considered vernacular poetry, aggressive dueling, a test of street cool, or just a mess of dirty insults, the dozens is a basic building block of African American culture. A game which could inspire raucous laughter or escalate to violence, it provided a wellspring of rhymes, attitude, and raw humor that has influenced pop musicians from Jelly Roll Morton and Robert Johnson to Tupac Shakur and Jay Z. Wald goes back to the dozens' roots, looking at mother-insulting and verbal combat from Greenland to the sources of the Niger, and shows its breadth of influence in the seminal writings of Richard Wright, Langston Hughes, and Zora Neale Hurston; the comedy of Richard Pryor and George Carlin; the dark humor of the blues; the hip slang and competitive jamming of jazz; and in its ultimate evolution into the improvisatory battling of rap From schoolyard games and rural work songs to urban novels and nightclub comedy and pop hits from ragtime to rap Wald uses the dozens as a lens to provide new insight into over a century of African American culture A groundbreaking work Talking Bout Your Mama is an essential book for anyone interested in African American cultural studies history and linguistics and the origins of rap music Stone Age Economics Marshall Sahlins, 2020-10-28

Stone Age Economics is a classic study of anthropological economics first published in 1974 Ambitiously tackling the nature of economic life and how to study it comparatively the book includes six studies which reflect the author's ideas on revising traditional views of the hunter gatherer and so called primitive societies revealing them to be the original affluent society The book examines notions of production distribution and exchange in early communities and examines the link between economics and cultural and social factors It consists of a set of detailed and closely related studies of tribal economies of domestic production for livelihood and of the submission of domestic production to the material and political demands of society at large
