the Edge Condition Ellen Rowley, 2018-11-02 This book presents an architectural overview of Dublin's mass housing building boom from the 1930s to the 1970s. During this period Dublin Corporation built tens of thousands of two storey houses developing whole communities from virgin sites and green fields at the city's edge while tentatively building four storey flat blocks in the city centre. Author Ellen Rowley examines how and why this endeavour occurred. Asking questions around architectural and urban obsolescence she draws on national political and social histories as well as looking at international architectural histories and the influence of post war reconstruction programmes in Britain or the symbolisation of the modern dwelling within the formation of the modern nation. Critically the book tackles this housing history as an architectural and design narrative. It explores the role of the architectural community in this frenzied provision of housing for the populace. Richly illustrated with architectural drawings and photographs from contemporary journals and the private archives of Dublin based architectural practices this book will appeal to academics and researchers interested in the conditions surrounding Dublin's housing history. Archaeology of Domestic Architecture and the Human Use of Space

Sharon R Steadman, 2016-06-16 Covering major theoretical and methodological developments over recent decades in areas like social institutions settlement types gender status and power this book addresses the developing understanding of where and how people in the past created and used domestic space. It will be a useful synthesis for scholars and an ideal text for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in archaeology and architecture. Products & Priorities, Monthly Labor Review

United States. Frederick Starr, 2013-06-04 Described in an 1835 bill of sale as une belle maison the Lombard plantation house is a rare survivor. Built in the early nineteenth century as a West Indian style residence it was the focal point of a large plantation that stretched deep into the cypress swamps of what is now New Orleans's Bywater neighborhood. Featuring the best Norman trussing in North America it was one of many plantations homes and grand residences that lined the Mississippi downriver from the French Quarter. A working farm until the 1800s its lands were eventually absorbed into the expanding city. After years of prosperity the entire area of the Ninth Ward now known as Bywater sank into poverty and neglect. This is the story of the rise fall and eventual resurrection of one of America's finest extant examples of West Indian Creole architecture and of the entire neighborhood of which it is an anchor. Through meticulous study of archives and archeology the author presents fascinating insights on how residents of this working plantation actually lived. With concrete evidence the author covers everything from cooking and cuisine to laundering and gardening. It is a story about buildings but also about people. Because pre Civil War US censuses never listed more than five enslaved persons all of whom worked in the house the plantation appears to have depended mainly on hired labor both African American and Irish. Eventually these groups came to populate the new neighborhood along with immigrants from Germany and then by new migrants from the countryside. This book brings together artist John James

Audubon architect of the U S capital Benjamin Henry Latrobe Lee Harvey Oswald and Fats Domino in an engrossing story linking these and other colorful figures to the history of a beautiful historic home in New Orleans Profusely illustrated with heretofore unidentified historic photographs and plans and with color images by master architectural photographer Robert S Brantley this book will equally interest inquisitive tourists and long term residents of the Gulf South historic preservationists and urbanists in search of insights on successful redevelopment architecture and history buffs and enthusiasts of one of America s most beloved and storied cities

A Peculiar Mixture Jan Stievermann, Oliver Scheiding, 2015-06-26 Through innovative interdisciplinary methodologies and fresh avenues of inquiry the nine essays collected in A Peculiar Mixture endeavor to transform how we understand the bewildering multiplicity and complexity that characterized the experience of German speaking people in the middle colonies They explore how the various cultural expressions of German speakers helped them bridge regional religious and denominational divides and eventually find a way to partake in America s emerging national identity Instead of thinking about early American culture and literature as evolving continuously as a singular entity the contributors to this volume conceive of it as an ever shifting and tangled web of contact zones They present a society with a plurality of different native and colonial cultures interacting not only with one another but also with cultures and traditions from outside the colonies in a peculiar mixture of Old World practices and New World influences Aside from the editors the contributors are Rosalind J Beiler Patrick M Erben Cynthia G Falk Marie Basile McDaniel Philip Otterness Liam Riordan Matthias Sch nofer and Marianne S Wokeck

A Passion for Justice Tinsley E. Yarbrough, 2001 In 1945 when southern segregationist Judge J Waties Waring turned civil rights activist he became the first jurist in modern times to declare segregated schooling inequality per se Throughout his career he also ordered the equalization of teachers salaries outlawed South Carolina s white primary and urged the complete breakdown of state enforced bars to racial intermingling Yarbrough examines the life and career of this fascinating but neglected jurist assessing the controversy he generated and his place in the early history of the modern civil rights movement
