friendly life even if they aren't ready to join a movement or give up bacon. With more than 7.5 billion people on the planet, wildlife is going extinct at the fastest rate since the dinosaurs. Three to four million dogs and cats are killed in shelters every year, billions of chickens, pigs, and cows are killed for food, and countless animals are killed in research labs or their habitat. The numbers are daunting, but there's good news too. Even one person truly can make a difference without breaking the bank. With Stephanie Feldstein's straightforward and encouraging guidance, readers will learn how to take action to create a better world for the animals we love. It starts with changes as simple as taking a shorter shower, skipping meat once a week, wearing this, not that, and extends all the way to online activism and politics. The animals need us, so let's get on with some world-changing.

Made In Future Prashant Kumar, 2022-05-16 In this new age, marketers, media owners, agencies, and content creators tend to struggle with the new realities of marketing. Everything they learnt while they were growing up is being challenged and seems to be growing irrelevant against the disruptors that they face. Marketing thinking, even in some of the world's largest organizations, is disconnected from their own ground-level executions. The game has changed. But they are still playing by the rules of the 1990s. They are set to lose if they keep applying Band-Aids on a broken model and trying to fit the future in the containers of the past. They need a native view of marketing in the digital age. This book provides a conceptual glue. Prashant Kumar, in his groundbreaking new book Made in Future, delves into the principles and applications of marketing strategy in the new age. Rich in research and great case studies, this book is an effort to bridge the two worlds of old-school marketing principles and the new consumer and media behaviours.

The Future of Technology Tom Standage, 2005-08-01 From the industrial revolution to the railway age through the era of electrification, the advent of mass production, and finally to the information age, the same pattern keeps repeating itself. An exciting, vibrant phase of innovation and financial speculation is followed by a crash, after which begins a longer, more stately period during which the technology is actually deployed properly. This collection of surveys and articles from The Economist examines how far technology has come and where it is heading. Part one looks at topics such as the greying, maturing of IT, the growing importance of security, the rise of outsourcing, and the challenge of complexity, all of which have more to do with implementation than innovation. Part two looks at the shift from corporate computing towards consumer technology, whereby new technologies now appear first in consumer gadgets such as mobile phones. Topics covered will include the emergence of the mobile phone as the digital Swiss Army knife, the rise of digital cameras which now outsell film-based ones, the growing size and importance of the games industry and its ever closer links with other, more traditional parts of the entertainment industry, and the social impact of technologies such as text messaging, Wi-Fi, and camera phones. Part three considers which technology will lead the next great phase of technological disruption and focuses on biotechnology, energy technology, and nanotechnology.
