Woodworth, 2016-04-29 In the late eighteenth century English novel the question of feminism has usually been explored with respect to how women writers treat their heroines and how they engage with contemporary political debates particularly those relating to the French Revolution Megan Woodworth argues that women writers ideas about their own liberty are also present in their treatment of male characters In positing a Gentleman's Liberation Movement she suggests that Frances Burney Charlotte Smith Jane West Maria Edgeworth and Jane Austen all used their creative powers to liberate men from the very institutions and ideas about power society and gender that promote the subjection of women Their writing juxtaposes the role of women in the private spheres with men s engagement in political structures and successive wars for independence the American Revolution the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars The failures associated with fighting these wars and the ideological debates surrounding them made plain at least to these women writers that in denying the universality of these natural freedoms their liberating effects would be severely compromised Thus to win the same rights for which men fought women writers sought to remake men as individuals freed from the tyranny of their patriarchal inheritance

Didactic Novels and British Women's Writing, 1790-1820 Hilary Havens, 2016-11-03 Tracing the rise of conduct literature and the didactic novel over the course of the eighteenth century this book explores how British women used the didactic novel genre to engage in political debate during and immediately after the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars Although didactic novels were frequently conventional in structure they provided a venue for women to uphold to undermine to interrogate but most importantly to write about acceptable social codes and values The essays discuss the multifaceted ways in which didacticism and women s writing were connected and demonstrate the reforming potential of this feminine and ostensibly constricting genre Focusing on works by novelists from Jane West to Susan Ferrier the collection argues that didactic novels within these decades were particularly feminine that they were among the few acceptable ways by which women could participate in public political debate and that they often blurred political and ideological boundaries The first part addresses both conservative and radical texts of the 1790s to show their shared focus on institutional reform and indebtedness to Mary Wollstonecraft despite their large ideological range In the second part the ideas of Hannah More influence the ways authors after the French revolution often linked the didactic with domestic improvement and national unity The essays demonstrate the means by which the didactic genre works as a corrective not just on a personal and individual level but at the political level through its focus on issues such as inheritance slavery the roles of women and children the limits of the novel and English and Scottish nationalism This book offers a comprehensive and wide ranging picture of how women with various ideological and educational foundations were involved in British political discourse during a time of radical partisanship and social change Feminist Hollywood Christina Lane, 2000 Feminist Hollywood examines the differences between commercial cinema and counter cinema by focusing on the work of contemporary women directors who have entered Hollywood from the realm of independent filmmaking Christina Lane compares their early documentaries or avant garde films with their more mainstream endeavors as she explores the possibilities and limits of feminist expression within the male dominated industry of commercial filmmaking Feminist Hollywood incorporates interviews with directors Susan Seidelman Martha Coolidge Kathryn Bigelow Lizzie Borden Darnell Martin and Tamra Davis in an attempt to bridge the theory gap that often excludes women s professional experiences and makes false assumptions about how the industry operates Lane balances these firsthand accounts with cultural theory and an understanding of the current film industry in which the line between commercial and independent filmmaking has become blurred. The timely and comprehensive nature of this volume will make it a welcome addition to the bookshelves of film scholars and amateur movie buffs alike
