Ladybird 5 For A Fiver Bin 2006:

Biocommunication of Plants Guenther Witzany, František Baluška, 2012-01-22 Plants are sessile highly sensitive organisms that actively compete for environmental resources both above and below the ground They assess their surroundings estimate how much energy they need for particular goals and then realise the optimum variant They take measures to control certain environmental resources They perceive themselves and can distinguish between self and non self They process and evaluate information and then modify their behaviour accordingly These highly diverse competences are made possible by parallel signalling mediated communication processes within the plant body intraorganismic between the same related and different species interorganismic and between plants and non plant organisms transorganismic Intraorganismic communication involves signalling mediated interactions within cells intracellular and between cells intercellular This is crucial in coordinating growth and development shape and dynamics Such communication must function both on the local level and between widely separated plant parts This allows plants to coordinate appropriate response behaviours in a differentiated manner depending on their current developmental status and physiological influences Lastly this volume documents how plant ecosphere inhabitants communicate with each other to coordinate their behavioural patterns as well as the role of viruses in these highly dynamic interactional networks
